PREFACE.

THE collection of papers which forms the subject of the present Catalogue has long been in the possession of the Society of Antiquaries. Within the last few years H. R. H. the late Prince Consort, and several other Fellows and Friends of the Society, have enriched it by valuable donations,* but in the year 1765 Bishop Percy referred to several ballads mentioned in the present Catalogue, as being "preserved in the archives of the Antiquarian Society, in a large folio Collection of Proclamations, &c. made in the reigns of King Henry VIII., King Edward VI., Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, King James I., &c." (Reliques of English Poetry, ii. 66.) The same collection was mentioned again, in 1781, by Warton, in his History of English Poetry (iii. 145), and many subsequent writers upon our early poetical literature have from time to time referred to some or other of its curious contents.

The words which we have quoted from Bishop Percy connect the Ballads in the possession of the Society with the Proclamations, and down to the year 1852 Proclamations, Ballads, and many other papers printed ballad-wise, on one side of a sheet or strip of paper, which now all pass under the general name of Broad-sides, formed one collection in the Society's Library.

The earliest trace in the Society's Minute Books of the formation of this collection occurs under the date of the 9th April, 1756, when Dr. Gifford, of the British Museum, the editor of the Society's edition of Folkes's Tables of Coins, reported to the Council, that under an authority previously given, he had purchased for the Society, at the sale of the books of Martin Folkes, their late President, two volumes folio of Proclamations, extending from Edward IV. to James I., at the cost of 9*l.*, with one additional Proclamation, probably of a later date, and relating to the coinage, at the price of 16*s.

The Society's purchase, through Dr. Gifford, (which no doubt consisted of one of the collections of Proclamations formed by Humphrey Dyson, with some manuscript additions,) led to an act of conspicuous liberality on the part of that singular man Thomas Hollis, of Lincoln's Inn, not then a Member of the Society, but a gentleman, as the entry on the Minutes† declares, "who on many occasions has approved himself a well-wisher and kind benefactor to this Society." Mr. Hollis presented, by Professor Ward, who had been his tutor, "a large and curious collection of State and other papers, from the time of Henry VIII. to Charles II. inclusive, in twelve volumes folio, purchased by him 23rd January, 1756, in one lot, No. 941, at the sale of books belonging to Mr. Charles Davis, bookseller in Holborn, deceased, in order to complete the set of Proclamations which he understood were purchased for the Society sometime since by Dr. Gifford, and of which valuable collection he judged this was originally a part. . . . The Society very thankfully acknowledged their great obligations to Mr. Hollis for his very valuable present and kind intention therein, and desired Dr. Ward to acquaint him therewith."‡

These entries sufficiently indicate the way in which the Society became possessed of these collections. In the year 1852 the binding of the fourteen large folio volumes in which they were then contained, and the condition of many of the papers themselves, were found to require attention, and after due consideration it was deemed advisable to divide them into two separate collections. The Proclamations, one of the most valuable collections known to be in existence, were thrown into one independent chronological series, and the Broad-sides, including the Ballads, into another. The new arrangement was effected under the inspection and personal direction of Robert Lemon, Esq. F.S.A. Every single paper was what is termed laid down, upon fine cartridge paper, with the greatest care, in the way best calculated for its preservation, and finally, Mr. Lemon, in his zeal for the service of the Society, compiled Catalogues both of the Proclamations and the Broad-sides. The present publication comprises Mr. Lemon's Catalogue of the latter series passed through the press by himself, and with his own complete and comprehensive index.

It was hoped that he would have consummated his work by prefixing an Introduction. Some present infirmities have interfered with his accomplishment in this respect of his meditated design. His indisposition will probably soon yield to the restorative influences of his well-earned retirement from active duties; but, in the meantime, after considerable delay, the Catalogue is sent forth to the Members, with his concurrence, and with merely the following general observations on its contents.

The particular classes in literature under which these papers seem principally to fall are:—

1. GRANTS OF INDULGENCES and other ecclesiastical privileges. Some early printed examples of these documents will be found at pp. 1, 2, and 166.

2. BALLADS and other compositions in verse. These will be deemed by many persons one of the most remarkable features of the collection. Among those of the reign of Henry VIII. there occur eight ballads, most of them probably unique, in relation to a controversy or contest carried on in verse respecting the character of Thomas Cromwell, Earl of Essex (pp. 2—5). The passages in Percy's Reliques and Warton's History of English Poetry to which we have already referred have relation to these very remarkable productions.

In the same reign is placed another poem of this class, which has conduced to the establishment of the authorship of that singular prose satire, a kind of English Reynard the Fox, entitled "Beware the Cat." The Rev. Thomas Corser, who possesses the only known copy of this work, has minutely described it in his Collectanea Anglo-Poetica, vol. i. p. 108, and J. Payne Collier, Esq. F.S.A. published from the Registers of the Stationers' Company a confirmation of the statement in this ballad that "Beware the Cat" was written by William Baldwin, a contributor to "The Mirror for Magistrates," and author of "The Funerals of Edward VI." and of several other works.*

In the reign of Edward VI. there occurs another example of a controversy or contention in verse, the parties being the well-known poet Thomas Churchyard and a writer who signed himself Thomas Camell. Of the verses printed on this occasion a collection was subsequently published in 1560; and of the sixteen pieces included in that rare volume,† fourteen are extant in their original form of Broad-sides in the Society's Library, and are noticed in this Catalogue, pp. 7-11.

There is no other example in the Catalogue before us of these poetical contests. Controversialists were taught by Martin Marprelate that for the diffusion of their coarse but pungent satire prose was an easier vehicle than verse, and the printer a more certain disseminator than the minstrel, who, during the reign of Elizabeth, was restrained by law in the exercise of his wandering function. This was probably a result of the abuse of his ancient freedom, by converting it into a means of spreading personal invectives or fomenting agitation upon controverted opinions on public affairs. From this time the Ballads in the present collection are principally Historical, in commemoration, that is, of public events—the deaths and accessions of sovereigns or leading public men, and the punishment of conspicuous criminals. There are a few that belong to the Merry Ballad—romantic stories in ballad form, and one or two that are moral or religious. They may all be easily referred to under the head "Ballads" in Mr. Lemon's Index. Among the most noticeable are the Epitaph upon Edward VI. at p. 11; two Ballads on the accession of Queen Mary (p. 12); one on her marriage by John Heywood (p. 13); and another by the same writer on the seizure of Scarborough Castle by Sir Tho. Stafford (p. 14). The death of Queen Mary and the accession of Queen Elizabeth are commemorated in several compositions mentioned at pp. 16, 17; the murder of Lord Darnley at p. 19; the Northern Rebellion at p. 20; the death of Henry Earl of Arundel at p. 24; of Benedict Spinola at p. 25; the Babington Conspiracy at p. 28; the murder of Overbury at pp. 44, 45; the death of James I. at p. 74; and finally the collection is brought to an end by a mock panegyric upon Cromwell at p. 115; and a sneer at the Good Old Cause at p. 133.

3. HISTORICAL BROADSIDES IN PROSE. These constitute the main body of the collection, and occur in great numbers, especially in the reigns of Elizabeth, James I. and Charles I. To enumerate their subjects would be to run through the principal events of the latter half of the sixteenth century and the first half of the seventeenth. It will suffice to state that they are of the most miscellaneous character, and that historical inquirers who consult this Catalogue, especially in relation to the eventful period to which we have referred, will often be surprised at the unexpected light which it throws on the most out-of-the-way subjects. The papers, speaking generally, are emanations of the popular feeling of the times to which they belong, and are therefore occasionally coarse, vulgar, and illiberal, but even on that account they may be the more valuable. They give a true insight into the real state of manners among our forefathers, and forcibly indicate the strong contrast which in many respects would be found to exist between such a collection of papers formed in relation to our own days and one formed two or three centuries ago.

It must not be supposed from these remarks that the only or even the principal use of this portion of the present collection is to be found in its illustration of popular manners and feelings. These really and truly are seen and made manifest throughout the whole of the collection; but it contains also many important documents, applicable as authorities, on strictly historical subjects. One example shall be given by way of illustration.

Bishop Hacket in his Life of Archbishop Williams (Part ii. p. 96) stated that "the christening of Prince Charles [afterwards Charles II.] being celebrated in the chapel of St. James's House, June 27, 1630, and all the Lords Spiritual and Temporal about London being invited thither, to make the splendour eminent, the Bishop of Lincoln [afterwards Archbishop Williams] only was left out, and not admitted to join in prayer and joy with that noble congregation. The more sharp diseases suffer not the lesser to be perceived; yet this omission, light as it might seem, did twinge him, even to outward demonstration of dejectedness, that, in so good a day, wherein the clemency of the King should have run at waste to all men, that then he should be separated from his countenance and this solemnity. 'But,' says he, 'in one respect it was well, for I would not have said Amen to Bishop Laud's prayer (which he conceived for the royal infant, and was commended to all parish churches) in that passage, 'Double his father's graces, O Lord, upon him, if it be possible.' No supplication could be better than to crave increase of grace for that noble branch; for, when a Prince is very good, God is a guest in a human body: but, to put in a supposal, whether the Holy Ghost could double those gifts to the child which he had given to his father, and to confine the goodness and almightiness of the Lord, it was three-piled flattery and loathsome divinity."

Down to a recent period, readers of Hacket's curious book have accepted his statement on this subject without hesitation. Nor did Williams's sharp comments on the prayer of the brother Bishop to whom he attributed his exclusion from the ceremony, escape the observation of writers adverse to Archbishop Laud. Among others, Brodie noticed the circumstances in the first edition of his History of the British Empire (vol. ii. p. 358), and from his pages Mr. Hallam transferred Williams's concluding words, as stated above, to the first edition of his Constitutional History, accompanied by some further severe remarks. In the second edition of the Constitutional History, Mr. Hallam, with characteristic candour, inserted the following passage in an advertisement prefixed to vol. i.:—"I am indebted to the Rev. Mr. Todd for the information, communicated in the most obliging manner, that that passage in Hacket's Life of Williams referred to in vol. ii. of this edition, p. 54, note, relative to the prayer composed by Laud on the birth of the Prince of Wales, is not consonant to truth. He has favoured me with a copy of the prayer, from 'A Summarie of Devotions composed and used by Dr. W. Laud, sometime Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, now published according to the copy written with his own hand, and preserved in the archives of St. John's College library at Oxford. Oxon. 1667,'* which does not contain the words 'if it be possible,' wherein the whole indecency consists. From the expressions of Hacket, it seems that he took it on the word of Bishop Williams."

Thus the facts have stood up to the present time. Mr. Brodie has not indeed altered his statement in his recent edition (Constitutional History, ii. 90), but the note has been omitted from subsequent editions of Mr. Hallam's work, and inquirers generally have felt that in this particular Laud had been wronged.

It turns out, however, that Williams was substantially right. The Broadside in this collection, No. 299, catalogued at p. 83, is an original copy of the Form of Prayer prescribed on the occasion in question, and printed by Robert Barker, the King's printer, with the date 1630, and in it we find, not indeed the very exact words given by Hacket, but the obnoxious

* We quote this title-page as it stands in Mr. Hallam's work, but it is not quite literally correct.

“if it be possible.” The actual words are:—“And when fulness of days must gather him [i. e. the King], Lord double his graces (if it be possible) and make them apparent in this his heir, and his heirs after him for all generations to come.”* Laud’s MS. formerly at St. John’s College was evidently a revised edition of the prayer—written probably after the impropriety of the words in the parenthesis had been pointed out.

4. A few words must be added on the ENGRAVINGS AND WOOD-CUT ILLUSTRATIONS to be found among these Broadside. On turning to the account given in the Catalogue of those mentioned in the list printed in Mr. Lemon’s index, under the

* That the whole facts may be put on record, we add the prayer exactly as it stands in the original Broadside:—

“A Thankesgiuing for the safe deliuey of the Queene, and happy birth of the yong Prince.

Most mercifull God and gracious Father, thou hast giuen vs the ioy of our hearts, the contentment of our soules for this life, in blessing our deare and dread Souereigne and His vertuous Royall Queene with a hopefull Sonne, and vs with a Prince, in thy iust time and his, to rule ouer vs. Wee giue thy glorious Name most humble and hearty thanks for this: Lord make vs so thankfull, so obedient to thee for this great mercie, that thy goodnesse may delight to increase it to vs. Increase it, good Lord, to more children: the prop one of another against single hope. Increase it to more Sons: the great strengthening of his Maiesty & his Throne. Increase it in the life and well fare of this Prince already giuen. Increase it in the ioy of the Royall Parents, & all true hearted subiects. Increase it with his Christian and most happy education, both in faith and goodness: That this kingdome and people may be happy: First in the long life and prosperity of our most gracious Souereigne, and his Royall Consort: And when fulnesse of dayes must gather him,¹ Lord double his graces (if it be possible) and make them apparent in this his Heire, and his Heires after him for all generations to come, even for Jesus Christ his sake our Lord and onely Sauour. Amen.

“Imprinted at London by Robert Barker, Printer to the King’s most Excellent Maiestie. 1630.”

word "Portraits," at p. 196, the reader will find mention of copies of several engraved portraits of great rarity and merit. One of Mary Queen of Scots is described at p. 29; one of Robert Earl of Essex, on horseback, at p. 34; Delaram's portrait of Queen Elizabeth, in the clouds, at p. 35; Prince Henry, poising a lance, at p. 41; Sir Thomas Overbury, by Elstrack, p. 44; Queen Anne of Denmark, on horseback, p. 47; Captain John Smith, p. 48; George Villiers Duke of Buckingham, on horseback, p. 79; and Praise God Barebones, p. 127. The Wood-cut Illustrations partake of the character of the Broad-sides themselves, and are often curious as representations of manners; several of them have been copied for this catalogue, either in part or in the whole, and may be referred to as illustrative of costume and manners. Mrs. Turner, one of the culprits in the case of Sir Thomas Overbury, at p. 45; the drawing of the Virginia Lottery, at p. 47; the meeting of King James and Prince Charles on the return of the latter from Spain, with the rejoicings in the streets on that occasion, at p. 59; the funeral car of Lodovick Duke of Richmond and Lenox, at p. 64; the Londoners flying into the country in a time of plague, at p. 84; men drinking and smoking round a table, at p. 106; and the view of the top of Temple Bar, with the heads of two traitors stuck thereon upon poles, at p. 143;—these are examples of the kind of illustration which is alluded to.

These remarks, hastily thrown together to enable the Council to send forth the book at once, although no substitute for the detailed Introduction which has been long expected, will do something towards explaining the varieties of subjects to which this collection relates, and the kind of interest which all inquirers have in its contents. It may tend also to show how praiseworthy were the pains taken by the Fathers of this Society to gather together and preserve whatever might be useful in the promotion of any class of antiquarian studies—an example which it is hoped will not be lost upon the present generation.

Broadsides.

HENRY VIII.

1513. 1. Indulgence granted by Our Holy Father Pope Leo that nowe is to all such as shall contribute money towards the ransom of Sir John Pyllet, Knyght of the Holy Sepulchre of Christ, who, coming from Jerusalem, was taken prisoner by the Mauris and Infidels, cruel ennemys unto Cristes feithe, and by them, through their great torments and threatninges of dethe, was compelled either to leve his feithe or to pay unto them many millions of ducats of gold; the said knight having bound himself to certain Venetian merchants, who had advanced for his deliverance the summe of 2,000 ducats for his said ransom. Confirmed by licence of King Henry VIII. for the said Knight to collect and gather alms, for the above purpose. Slightly mutilated. At the top are woodcuts for the arms of the new Pope Leo X.; a representation of Christ risen from the Holy Sepulchre, with the Roman soldiers asleep; and the royal arms of England, with angels for supporters.

Probably in the year 1513, the year of election of Pope Leo X., "our Holy Father that nowe is." Presented to the Society of Antiquaries by His Royal Highness the Prince Consort, from the Royal Library at Windsor.

1518? 2. Indulgence granted to all such as shall contribute or help with any part of their goods towards the reparations or maintaining the service of Almighty God in the Church of Saint George the Martyr in Southwark, "as in gyvyng ony boke, belle, or lyght, or any other churchly ornamentes." Specifying the number of days of pardon granted on certain feast or holy days in the year. "The summe of the pardon cometh to in the yere, XII.M.CCCC. & XL. dayes of pardon: & the summe of the masses that is sayd & song within the same parisshe church of Saynt George is a M. and XLIII." Partly mutilated.

In the time of Wolsey, when Cardinal and Chancellor of England, and probably before he was Legate a latere, which appointment he received in the year 1518. Presented as the preceding.

1519. 2A. Form of Indulgence granted by John Cavalar, Keeper or Master of the Hospital of the Blessed Mary of Bethleem extra Portam Episcopi, commonly called Bishopsgate, and founded for sustentation of insane persons, to such as shall contribute towards the relief and support of the said Hospital; promising plenary indulgence and remission of sins for contributing to so godly a work.

The vignette is an extremely rude woodcut of the Birth of the Saviour; the Virgin Mary at the entrance of the Manger, the Holy Child lying on the ground before her, and Joseph, or some other man, looking over the wall, with the Star of Bethleem in the ascendant.

2B. Grant by Dr. William Alger, Provincial of the Order of the Friars Eremites of St. Augustin's in England, to the Guardians and Masters of the Guild or Confraternity of St. John, in the Parish Church of St. Nicholas de Wakering, in the diocese of London, of plenary indulgence and absolution. Form of absolution.

1527?

3. Blank Form of Indulgence by John Herryes, William Myles, and Richard Chapell, Wardens of the Chapel of St. Margarete de Wexbridge [Uxbridge] in the diocese of London, by permission of the Most Reverend Father in God Thomas Cardinal of York, for contributions towards the repair and enlargement of the said chapel. With form of absolution and plenary remission.

Impressum per me Richardum Fakes.

No date, but probably in the year 1527.

1540,
July.

4. A Balade on Thomas Crumwell.

(A modern notice of the ballad printed in the Reliques of Ancient Poetry, being probably the first of the series described below.)

1540.

5. A Balade agaynst malycyous Sclaunderers.

"Heve and how rumbelow thou art to blame,

"Trolle into the right way agayne for shame."

Prentyd at London in Lombard strete nere unto the Stockes market, at the sygne of the Mermayde by John Gough. Cum privilegio Ad imprimendum solum. O Domine in virtute tua letabitur Rex, &c.

This is the first of a series of ballads in this collection of a poetical controversy. The first aggressor is presumed to have been of the Romish religion, and had printed a ballad with the burthen, as it seems to be, of "Hebe and how rumbelow," reviling the memory of Thomas Lord Crumwell, whose sweeping reforms in the Church made him peculiarly obnoxious to the Roman Catholics. The gist of the original production may be gathered from the third stanza in this one:—

Although lord Crumwell a traytour was,
 Yet dare I saye that the Kyng of his grace
 Hath forgyven hym that gret trespas.
 To rayle than on dead men, thou art to blame,
 Trolle now into the way agayne for shame.

The use of the word "trolle" in various ways, it will be seen, was adopted as a sort of index on both sides of the controversy. This collection of ballads is nearly complete, and probably as a whole unique. The rarity of some of the pieces may be inferred from their not being enumerated among the works of the early printers whose names are attached to them. None of the various ballads of this controversy have dates to them; but the internal evidence is so clear that nothing is to be regretted on that account. Thomas Lord Crumwell, Earl of Essex, was attainted and beheaded in June, 1540. The writer of this "Balade" in the last stanza prays for the Kynges noble grace,

 With Prince Edward, his sonne, to succede in his place.
 God kepe them amonge us, longe time and space.

All the subsequent ballads, in addition to the King and Prince Edward, "that moste odoriferous thyng," introduce the name of Queen Katharine, Henry's "most lawfull wyfe." This is presumed to be Katharine Howard, whom he married on the 8th of August, 1540. It may therefore be conjectured that the first of this series of ballads was produced in the course of the month of July in that year, for there can be no doubt the vituperation of Crumwell followed immediately upon his execution.

1540.

6. A lptell treatyse agaynst sedicyous persons.

"To trolle awaye, or trolle in, let not trolle spare,
 "If trolle truly trolle, trolle nedeth not to care."

Consisting of thirteen stanzas, ending with God save the Kyng, and repeating the distich, "To Trolle away," &c.

"Composed by Thomas Smyth, servaunt to the kynges royall Majestye;

"And clerke of the Quenes graces counsell, though most unworthy."

1540.

7. A Treatyse declarynge the despyte of a secrete sedy- cyous person, that dareth not shewe hym selfe.

"His doyngs amonge trewe men, shuld not be had in place
 "That feareth to tell his name, & shamethe to shewe his face."

Consisting of thirteen stanzas, of seven lines each, the last of which prays for the King's preservation, "with Katherine our Quene" and "Edwarde our Prynce, that most redolent floure."

"By Thomas Smythe, servaunt to the Kynges Royall Maiestye,
 "And clerke of the Queenes graces council (thoughe mooste unworthy)."

Imprynted at London in Pater-noster rowe, at y^e sygne of our lady pytye, by John Redman, ad imprimendum solum.

1540. 8. An Answere to Maister Smyth, seruaunt to the kynges most royall maiestye. And clerke of the Quenes graces counsell though most vnworthy.

“Whether ye trolle in, or els trolle out,
“ye trolle untruly, loke better about.”*

This also consists of thirteen stanzas, each one answering almost verbally, but in a different sense, to the foregoing ballad, and concludes :

“By me, a poore man, whose herte if ye knewe, W. G.
“Wolde be the Kynges servaunt as fayne as you.”

Imprinted at London by me Rychard Bankes. Cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum. And to be solde in Pater-noster Rowe by John Turke at the sygne of the Rose.

1540. 9. An Enboye from Thomas Smyth, upon thaunswer of one W. G. Lurkyng in Lorrells Denne, for fear men shulde hym see.

“Whether I troll here or troll ther, I wyll so troll aboute
“That in my trollynge, I do trust, as you are, to trolle you oute.”

Sixteen stanzas, but without any imprint.

1540. 10. The ret'ne† of M. Smythes Enboye, serhaunt to the Kynges Royall Majestye and Clerke of the Quenes graces counsell (though most vnworthy).

“Trolle here, trolle there, trolle out, trolle in,
“Ye trolle away and trolle aboute lyke a blynde sym.”

This has fifteen stanzas, and repeats the above distich.

Imprynted at London by Rycharde Bankes. Cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum. And be to sell in Lombard stret, nere unto the stockes, by Rycharde Kele.

1540. 11. An artificiaall Apologie, articulerlye answerpnge to the obstreperous Obgannynges of one W. G. Ebometyd to the bituperacion of the tryumphant trollpge Thomas Smyth. Repercussed by the ryght redolent & rotounde rethorician R. Smyth, B. with annotacio's of the mellifluous and misticall Master Mynterne, marked in the mer-gent for the enucliacion of certen obscure obeliskes, to thende that the imprudent lector shulde not tytubate or hallucinate in the labyrinthes of this lucubratiuncle.

* This ballad is noticed in Ames's Typographical Antiquities, vol. i. p. 411; and, to show the errors which may be introduced, even in standard works of high authority, this distich is printed:—

“Whether ye trotte in or els trotte out,
“Ye trotte untruly, loke better about.”

† Instead of the word “returne” the nonsensical word “retinue” has been printed in Ames's Typog. Antiq. vol. i. p. 411.

Imprynted at London by Rycharde Bankes. Cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum. And be to sell in Pater noster rowe, at the sygne of the Rose.

This long ballad of twenty-four stanzas by R. Smyth, P. is elucidated with short Latin annotations in the margin by "the misticall Master Mynterne."

1540.

12. A Paumflet compyled by G. L.

To Master Smyth and Wylliam G.
Prayenge them both, for the lobe of our Lorde,
To grove at last to an honest accorde.

Imprynted at London by Rycharde Bankes. Cum privilegio, &c. And be to sell in Pater noster rowe, at the sygne of the Roose.

This "Paumflet" by G. L. consists of twenty-one stanzas, and is the last of the series of this poetical controversy.

13. A short Answer to the Boke called: Beware the Cat.

This is a scurrilous poem of fifty-six lines, denying that the book called "Beware the Cat" was written by one Stremer, but that it was the production of Wylliam Baldewine, "God graunt him wel to spede."

"Every thing almost: in that boke is as tru,
"As that at Midsomer: in London it doth snu."

It has no imprint.

Henry
VIII.?

14. A Ballad of five stanzas, having neither name nor imprint.

"Susteine, absteine, kepe well in your minde,
"Beare and forbear, have ever in remembraunce;
"For ye shall thereby great quietnes finde
"In all your life what soever doeth chaunce.
"It is the onely thing that may you avaunce
"And make you to be estemed verely
"Among all other for the moost happy."

Henry
VIII.?

15. Questions worthy to be consulted on for the weale publyque.

"First, whether hipocrisie, fayned relygion called, and wicked lawes
"called Cacanomia, myght be put out of this Realme without counsell
"of Avaricia.

&c. &c.

No date nor imprint, but probably in the reign of Henry VIII.

EDWARD VI.

Edw. VI.
early.

16. Of Misrule's contending with God's worde by name, And then of ones Judgment that heard of the same.

"I heare saie that some saye ther chaunsed of late
"Betwene one mad misrule, and Goddes worde, great hate;
"The cause of there out fall (as some saye) is this,
"By here saye, I harde it, now marke what it is."

Quod Wyllyam Kethe.

Finis.

Dominus mihi adjutor.

Imprynted at London in Temestrete by Heugh Syngelton, dwellynge overgaynst the Stiliardes.

It has no date, but the subject seems to fix it about the first year of Edward VI. It is mentioned in the Typographia as No. 29 of Singleton's productions.

1548?
June.

17. Two Ballads of six verses each, on one broadside; the first supposed to be by Stephen Gardynere, the other answering him rhyme for rhyme. The first verse on Gardynere's side is:

"Theyr dedes in effecte, my lyfe wolde have
"Theyr wordes do pretende, my lyvyng to crave
"Theyr dedes I drede not, theyr wordes beyng suche
"I drede and regarde, in maner as moche."

On the other side the first verse is:

"Your dedes in effecte, that made your lyfe brave
"Hath caused your wordes, the truth to deprave;
"Your dedes ye forget not, your wordes being suche
"You dryve on and drede not, all men se to moche."

It has neither imprint nor date; the latter was probably in June, 1548, when Bishop Gardynere was sent to the Tower, and he was shortly after deprived. On the 14th of June the Earl of Warwick writes to Sec. Cecill, desiring to know how "the arrogant Bishop Gardynere has been proceeded with." On the 30th he was sent to the Tower.—Council Register.

18. A Newe Balade made by Nicholas Balthorp which suffered in Calys the xv. daie of Marche. M.D.L.

(Last verse,) "Forgeve me al in this worlde wide,
"And praie for me whiles I do live,
"For do [no?] man's sake tarieth the tide,
"Therefore I do you al forgeve;

“ In the Lordes handes I do commend
 “ Finis. q^d Nicholas Balthorpe.”

Imprinted at london in Foster lane, by Jhon Waley.

Edw. VI.

19. A new mery balad of a maid that wold mary wyth a serbyng man.

“ Nowe prudentlie to ponder proverbes of olde,
 “ How that seldome or when commeth the better,
 “ With divers other tales as I have herd tolde,
 “ That the nigher the bone, the fleshe is much sweter.
 “ Thus a lover of late sente me his letter,
 “ Therefore let al my friendes saye what they can,
 “ I wyl have to my husbande a serving man.”

Fourteen stanzas, ending :

“ And for my sake all you that tippie pot or canne
 “ Drynke freely to the merie good serving man.”
 “ Finis. quod Thomas Emley.”

Imprinted at London in foster lane, by Jhon Waley.

1552.

20. Baby Bycars Dreame.

This is a small poem of only fourteen couplets, or eight and twenty lines, the two first lines being :

“ WHEN faith in frendes beare fruit, and folysh fancys fade,
 “ And crafty catchers cum to nought, and hate great love hath made.”

And the two last :

“ THEN baelfull barnes be blythe, that here in England wonne,
 “ Your strife shal stynt I undertake, your dreedfull daies ar done.”

Finis . quod . T . Churcharde.

Imprynted at London in Aldersgate strete by Rycharde Lant.

This is the origin of another poetical controversy.

1552.

21. To Davyd Dicars When.

“ To him that doth dreame, David Dicars When,
 “ And even so from hym, to such other men.”

This is an answer, in fifty-four lines, to “ Davy Dycars Dreame,” and ends :

“ Then I saye then, when you agayn when :
 “ Wyll say well your selfe, and suche other men ;
 “ And all folke wyll doo well. Lo thus I ende then,
 “ All thynges shall be well, whiche God graunt. Amen.

“ Domine saluum fac Regem

“ Quod T. Camel.”

Imprinted at London by Hary Sutton, dwellyng in Poules Churchyarde, at the sygne of the blacke boye.

The couplets of this poem are printed in the centre of the sheet, and in the margin on each side is an ornamental border, cut in wood, of naked winged boys in various attitudes amidst branches and foliage.

22. A Replication to Camels objection.

1552. This is a much longer production, consisting of 118 lines in couplets, and enters into much personal abuse, ending :

“ God send you more wit, now kepe your head warme,

“ Or els the next winter, mai doo you some harme.

“ Thus here I do ende, and rest for this time,

“ Excepte you procure me, to make a new rime.

“ Finis . Quod . Thomas Churchard.”

Imprinted by Rycharde Lant.

1552. 23. Camelles Rejoindre, to Churchyarde.

“ To Churchyard or Manaring, or for lack of a name :

“ To Dicar the Dreamer, if you knowe the same.”

This rejoinder is longer than the preceding, consisting of 142 lines, and equally exceeds it in personal abuse. It ends, as in the former piece by Camell :

“ Domine saluum fac Regem

“ Thomas Camell.”

Imprinted at London by Hary Sutton, dwellyng in Poules churchyard.

1552, April. 24. Westerne Wyll. Upon the Debate betwixte Churchyarde and Camell.

This is a very different production to all the preceding : the above words form the title-page, and are placed in the centre of a rather elaborate woodcut border. The poem itself consists of thirty-five stanzas of six lines each, besides repeating at length “Davy Dycar’s Dreame.” It opens with the following immense distich :

“ Rowe thy bote, thou joly joly maryner, & wynd wel by thy sayle,

“ For thou mightst never wind it up better thine own self for to availe;”

and ends with a shorter one :

“ Suche happe may happe, to gyve a seconde fyttē

“ If cause shall happe, and laysure serve for it.”

Imprynted at London in Fletestrete at the sygne of the George next to Saynt Dunstones Church, by Wyllyam Powell.

1552.

25. The Surrejoindre unto Camels rejoindre.

“What lyfe may lyve, long undefamde, what workes may be so pure,
 “What vertuous thing, may florish so, that fautles may endure.”

Ending :

“Thus heare I leave, I lyst not write, to answer wher you rayle;
 “He is unwise that strives with fooles, wher words can not prevayle.

“Finis. Thomas Churcharde.”

Imprinted at London in Aldersgate strete by Rycharde Lant.

26. A Supplication unto Mast Camell.

A little poem of twenty-six lines, in couplets, in very uncouth language, and misapplying fine words, as if from a peasant, beginning :

“Please it your maship, good mast Camell,
 “To heare a poore man, his tale for to tell.”

This ironically entreats Master Camell not to be too hard upon one Churcharde, and ends :

“Your daily Belman
 “at your mañdement,
 “Good man Gefferay
 “Chappell, of “Whipstable.”

1552.

27. To goodman Chappels supplication.

This is an answer to the former, and in the same sort of uncouth language, and identifies Harry Whoball with Goodman Chappell, thus :

“Harry Whoball harke, mast Camell hath yzeene
 “Thy vengeance zory bill, and thompes the as I wene.”

And is signed at the end, “Thomas Camell.”

Imprinted at London by Henry Sutton.

1552,
May.28. Steben Steple to Mast Camell.

Another short poem of twenty-four lines, purporting to be the language of a serving-man.

“Rest ye mery vayre zyr, I trow ye be Maste Camell,
 “Ichā on message to you zent, vrom goodman Geffrai Chapel.”

Desiring him to

“Looke about ye better,
 “And anser Geffray Chappell zyr, dat toke ye de zupplication,
 “Vor his name is not Hary Whobal, ich zwear by God’s zavacion.”

“ Now ych ha myne arnde a do,
 “ Chud ha ye yor head to heede a
 “ And be good maister Churchard to,
 “ And zo God be yor sprede a.”

Imprinted by Richard Lant.

1552. 29. “ M. Harry Whobals mon to M. Camel, greetes
“ Him wysching hally bread, to feare all ragging spreetes.”

This poem is in forty-four lines, and twelve additional lines, ornamented on each side by a border of woodcuts of various patterns and widths. It has no imprint. In the additional lines the author's name, Richard Beard, is concealed.

1552. 30. Camelles conclusion.

“ Camelles conclusion, and last farewell then,
 “ To Churcharde and those, that defende his when.”

This is a long poem, consisting of four pages closely printed, and answers in detail several of the preceding pieces; ending with the distich:

“ The harteburne I owe you is, yf you come to Lynne,
 “ I praie you to take my poore howse for your ynne.”

Imprinted at London by Hary Sutton, dwellyng in Poules Churchyarde, at the sygne of the blacke boye.

1552. 31. A playn and fynall confutation :
Of Cammells corlyke oblattracion.

This is a conclusion of the controversy on the part of Churchyard, and consists of four very closely-printed pages, of above fifty lines in a page, and ends:

“ Thus here I take my leave from you, wishing for grace and healthe;
 “ To kepe my Prince from all his foes, and eke the common wealthe.”

Finis. q Thomas Churchyard.

Imprinted in Fletstrit, by Wylliam Gryffyth, a lyttle above the condit, at the syne of the Gryffyn.

1552. 32. Alphabetum primum Beardi.

Cammels crosse rowe,

“ Both playnely showe

“ Wynthout lyes or gyle:

“ His foolyshe feattes,

“ Which raging freattes

“ The truthe for to rebyle.”

This poem is by Harry Whobal's man, and contains fifty-six lines in couplets, each couplet beginning with the letters of the alphabet in their due order. It is ornamented on each side with very elaborate woodcuts, far superior to any of its predecessors.

Finis. q, Richarde Beearde.

Imprynted at London in Fletstrete by Wyllyam Copland.

1552.

33. "Of such as on fantesye decree & discuss;
" On other mēs works, lo Obids tale thus."

This in a piece of forty-six lines gives the version of Ovid's tale of the judgment of Midas on the musical display between Pan and Apollo. It is signed with the name of T. HEDLEY.

Imprynted at London by Hary Sutton, dwellyng in Poules Church-yard. *

1553.

34. An Epitaph upon the deth of kyng Edward.

" Adewe pleasure,
" Gone is our treasure,
" Morning mai be our mirth;
" For Edward our kīg
" That rose did spring
" Is vaded and lyeth in earth."

It consists of fifteen stanzas, and ends with a verse for Queen Mary, and the prayer,

" God save the Kinge and the Queene."

Imprynted at London in Holburne nere to the Cundite at the signe of the Sarsins head by John Charlewod and John Tysdale.

MARY.

1553. 35. An Abe Maria, in commendation of our Most vertuous Queene. Imprinted at London in Pater Noster Reaw, by Richard Lant.

*Antiquary 180/90
and Stopes
L. & Confessor*

Consisting of twenty-four verses of four lines, each verse commencing in succession with the words of the salutation—Haile . Marie . full . of . Grace . our . Lorde . is . with . thee . blessed . art . thou . among . Women . and . blessed . is . the . fruyte . of . thy . wombe . Jesus. The last verse being :

JESUS.

“ Jesus most gentle, graunte this request—
“ Our noble Queene with thy grace to encrease
“ In health and honour, as pleaseth thee best,
“ That long over us she may reigne in peace.
“ Amen. Qd. L. Stopes.”

1553. 36. A new Ballade of the Marigolde.

A ballad in praise of Queen Mary, under the name of the flower the marigold, ending :

“ So to concorde us in eache case
“ As in Thy Courte it is enrolde;
“ Wee all (as one) to love Her Grace,
“ That is our Queene, this Marigolde.
“ God save the Queene.

“ Quod William Forrest, Preest.”

Imprinted at London in Aldersgate strete by Richard Lant.

- 1554, 36A. A praier to be sayd of all trewe Christianes against the Pope
May. and all the enemyes of Christ and his gspell.
Greenwich.

Imprynted at Grenewych by Conrade Freeman, in the month of May, 1554. With the most gracios licence and privilege of God Almighty, Kyng of Heaven and Erth.

This is printed in German type, and was no doubt part of a small book, as it bears the printer's signature K ij. ; and was probably printed abroad.

1554,
July. 37. A Balade specifieng partly the maner, partly the matter, in the most excellent meetyng and lyke mariage betwene our Soberaigne Lord and our Soberaigne Lady the Kynges and Queenes Highnes. Pende by John Heywod.

“The Egles byrde hath spred his wings
 “And from far of, hathe taken flyght
 “In whiche meane waye by no leyrings
 “On bough or braunch this birde wold light
 “Till on the rose, both red and whight
 “He lighted now, most lovinglie
 “And therto moste behovinglie.”

Imprinted at London by Wylliam Ryddell.

This poem, which contains twelve stanzas, is reprinted in the Harleian Miscellany, vol. x.

1555. 38. A Dietarie. Writtes published after the ordinaunce of Carles and Barons. Anno Domini 1315.

Containing extracts from various laws and ordinances regulating the number of dishes and courses of flesh and fish to be served at the tables of the nobility, prelates, and gentry, according to their respective degrees, from Edward II. to the year 1555. In the 9th of Edward II. 1315, the resort of minstrels to the houses of the great is strictly regulated: “And lykewyse that to the houses of Prelates, Earles and “Barons none resort to meate and drynke, unlesse he be a mynstrel; “and of these mynstrels, that there come none except it be three or “foure minstrels of honour at the most in one day.” And if any one offended against these ordinances: “at the firste tyme he to lose his “minstrelsie, and at the seconde tyme to forswear his craft.” It has no imprint.

Translated out of Frenche into Englishe.

This is adorned with an extremely rude woodcut of the badge of the House of Beaufort, the portcullis crowned, supported by a dragon and a greyhound, with the motto DIEV ET MON DROIT.

1557,
April 24.

40. A breefe balet touching the traytorous
takyng of Scarborow Castell.

The last verse is :

“ Our soveraigne lord : and soveraigne lady both :
“ Lawde we our lorde, for their prosperitee.
“ Beseeching him for it : as it now goth,
“ And to this daie hath gone, that it may bee :
“ We lettynge theyr Scarborow castells alone,
“ Takyng Scarborow warnings everychone.”

Finis. q J. Heywood.

Imprinted at London in fleetestrete by Tho. Powell. Cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum.

Sir Tho. Stafford, second son of Lord Stafford, landed in Scotland, from France, with some English fugitives, in April, 1557, and, suddenly marching into England, surprised the Castle of Scarborough, where, publishing a manifesto against Queen Mary, he had the audacity to style himself Protector of England. The castle, however, was retaken in a few days after by the Earl of Westmerland, and Stafford made prisoner. He was executed in London on the 28th of May following.—Rapin.

This ballad, and the former one on the espousals of Mary with Philip in 1554 (No. 37), are the only productions in this collection of John Heywood, the dramatist and epigrammatist. They are both printed in the tenth volume of the Harleian Miscellany.

1557,
March.

41. The Coppe of the self same wordes that mi Lorde
Sturton spake presently at his Death the vi day of March, in the yeare of our Lorde 1556, amonge the people as his Confession, desiringe the people to take examble by hym, and to kepe no Endy in their hertes for that is the roote of all evylles.

This is divided into two portions ; the first, Lord Stourton's speech, which has a very appropriate vignette of the letter C, a man slaying another prostrate on the ground ; the second portion is “ The praier
“ of the Lord Stourton which he spake kneling on his knees, desiring
“ the people to praye for hym, and also say with him.”

Imprinted by Wyllyam Pickeringe dwellynge uppon London brydge.

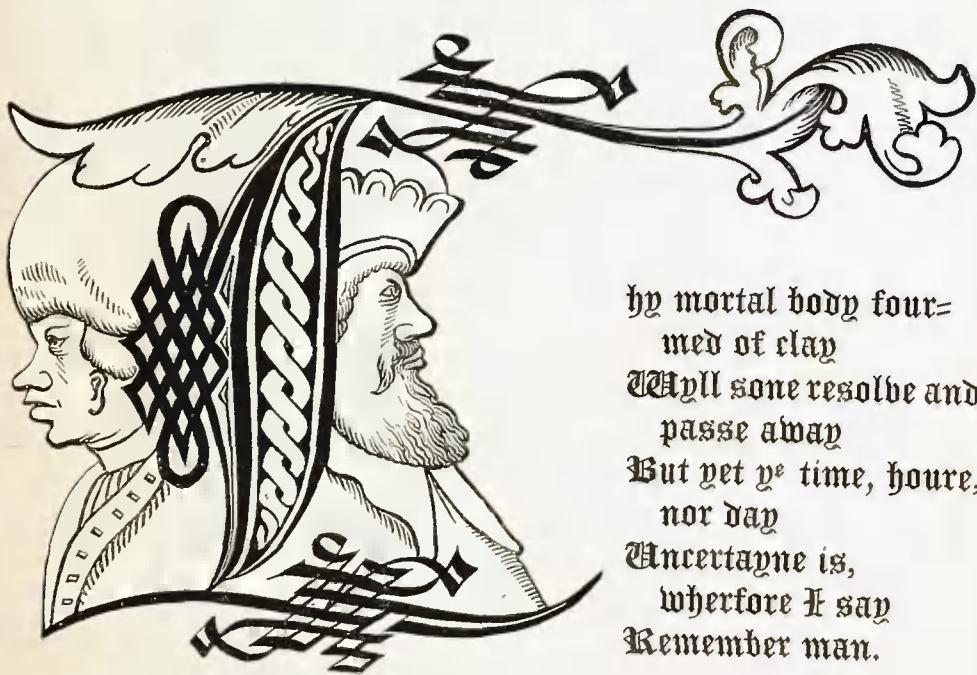

1557,
March.

42. A prayer sayd by the Lorde Sturton being on his knees before he went up the ladder, and also his confession before his death the .vi. day of March in the yeare of our Lord God M.D.L.vii.

Imprinted at London in Fletestrete nere to Saint Dunstans church
by Thomas Marshe.

The same in effect as the former broadside, only in this one the prayer comes first, and the confession after. Lord Stourton was condemned and executed for the murder of William and John Hartgill. For years there had been unceasing animosity between both parties. In January, 1557, he had arrested them both on a charge of felony, but was ordered by the Privy Council to deliver them over to the Sheriff of Somerset. Disappointed in this move against them, and goaded on by intense hatred, he caused them to be murdered by four of his own servants, all of whom suffered for the crime. His lordship, in deference to his rank, was hanged in a silken halter at Salisbury on the 6th of March, and his servants hung in chains a few days after. The Council Register of the period contains several interesting particulars about him.

John Charlewood.

Mary. 44. An exclamatio upō the erronious and fantasticall sprite of heresy, troubling the Unitie of the Church, deceabig the simple Christia with her unperfect, unprofitable and bayn wordes.

“ O heresy, with frenesy,
 “ disobedience and pride,
 “ Hast lead man’s mind with fancies blind
 “ headlong runnyng farre wyde
 “ From the path way to Christ, I saye
 “ o fonde folish vayne guyde.”

Imprinted at London in Pater Noster Reaw, by Richarde Lant.

A poem in praise of the Romish Church, and advising a universal reconciliation to it. Without date, but doubtless in the time of Queen Mary.

Mary? 45. A new balet entituled howe to Wybe well.

Shewing the extreme uncomfortableness of having a froward wife, as so many women turn out to be.

The last lines are :

“ You maydēs al that wives do mīd
 “ in tyme to come to be ;
 “ Endeuer your selfe that eche of you
 “ a faythfull wyfe may be.
 “ Finis. Quod Lewys Evans.”

Imprinted by Owen Rogers at the Spread Egle, betwyxte both the Saynct Bartholomews.

1558,
 Nov. 46. The Epitaphe upon the Death of the Most Excellent and our late vertuous Quene Marie, deceased, augmented by the first Author.

The last lines :

“ Farewell o Quene, o pearle most pure, that God or nature gave,
 “ The Erth, the Heave’s, the sprites, the saintes, cry honor to thy grave.
 “ Marie now dead, Elisabeth lives, our just and lawfull Quene,
 “ Obaye our Quene, as we are bounde, pray God her to preserve,
 “ And sende her grace longe life and fruite, and subjectestrouth to serve.”

Imprinted at London, in Smithfielde, by Richarde Lant.

ELIZABETH.

1558. 47. A songe betwene the Quenes Majestie and Englande.

This is in the form of a duet between England and Queen Elizabeth, under the name of Bessy. Each verse consists of four lines, and they are marked alternately E. and B. The first verse is :

“ E. Come over the born Bessy, come over the born Bessy, “ Swete Bessy come over to me,
“ And I shall the take, and my dere Lady make,
“ Before all other that ever I see.”

After twenty-two verses, both together conclude :

“ All honor, laud, and prayse, be to the Lord God alwaies,
“ Who hath all princes hartes in his handes
“ that by his powre and might, he may gide thẽ aright
“ For the welth of all christen landes.”

“ Finis. q Wylliam Birche.”

Imprinted at London by William Pickeringe, dwellyng under Saynt Magnus church.

1559? 48. A New Ballade.

An historical lay of ten verses, rehearsing a few leading points in the lives of some of the Queen's ancestors down to the late Queen Mary, each verse ending with the burden of “most dere Lady.”

“ Then God send us your noble Grace, as in dede it was highe tyme, “ Whiche doth all popery cleane deface, and set us forth God's trewe devine.

“ For whome we are all bound to pray Lady, Lady,
“ Long lyfe to raigne bothe night and day, most dere Lady.”

“ Finis. quod. R. M.”

It has no imprint.

1559? 49. The Prices of Fares and Passages to be payde unto Watermen from London to Gravesende, and likewise from Gravesende to London, and to every common place betwene: and also betwene London Bridge and Wyndesore, and so to every common place of landyng betwene London Bridge and Wyndesore.

Imprinted at London in Powles Churchyarde by John Cawood, Prynter to the Quenes Majestie. Cum privilegio Regiæ Majestatis.

There is no date as to this list of fares; they may, however, be placed as early as 1559, when Cawood was Queen's printer solely, before Richard Juge was joined with him in that office, by patent 24th March, 1560.

1559? 50. Another copy of the preceding.

1559? 51. Another Table of "The Prices & Rates that everye particular person oweth to pay for his fayre or passage unto Watermen or Whyrrymen from London to Gravesende, and likewise from Gravesende to London;" and a similar Table of "Rates & Pryces to and from all places between London & Windsor."

This is not the same as the preceding, though the fares are nearly, if not quite, the same in every particular. It has neither imprint nor date; but it is probably of the same period as the former.

1559? 52. Duplicate of the preceding.

1560,
March 23 53. A Prayer or Supplication made unto God, by a yonge man, that he woulde be mercifull unto us, and not kepe his worde alway from us, but that the truth may springe.

"Psalme Cxix.

"Wherein hath a yonge man, O Lorde, to rejoyce
"But in thy worde: therefore put I forth my voyce."

Which he accomplishes in seventeen stanzas; the last being as follows:

"I hartely beseche thee, o eternall God,
"To kepe and preserve Elysabeth our Quene
"That she may thy worde now set abroad
"Nowe in her tyme, as before hath bene
"By her godly Father and brother, for which thing we cry
"That we may repent, and not in our sinnes die."

"Finis. Quod John Pyttes."

Printed at London in Aldersgate strete, by William Herforde. The xxiii. of Marche, MD.lix.

1560. 54. An Admonition, to all such as shall intend hereafter to enter the state of Matrimonie, godlily and agreeably to lawes.

Shewing the Table of prohibited degrees of Consanguinity.

Set foorth by the most reverend father in God, Matthew Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of all England, and Metropolitane.

Strype, in his Life of Archbishop Parker, 8vo, vol. i. p. 174, gives an account of this Admonition, and states "that it was first printed by Reginald Wolf, Printer to King Edward VI." and that it was ordered to be set up in every church.

1561,
June 25. 55. The unfained retractation of Fraunces Cox, which he uttered at the Pillery in Chepesyde and elsewhere, accordyng to the Counsel's commaundement. Anno 1561. The 25 of June. Beyng accused for the use of certayne sinistral and dibelysh artes.

Imprinted at London by John Awdely, dwellyng by great S. Bartelmewes. Anno 1561. The .7. of July.

This has a very large woodcut initial letter G, representing a branch, in the foliage of which two grotesque faces appear.

1561. 56. Plan of the town of Lynn in the county of Norfolk, called "The Ground plat of Kings Lyn," by H. Bell. An. 1561.

This is perhaps the earliest engraved plan of Lynn extant. [Presented to the Society of Antiquaries by Robert Lemon, Esq. April, 1853.]

Feb. 58. A Dolefull Ditty, or sorowfull Sonet of the Lord Darly, sometime King of Scots. Nevew to the Noble and worthy King, King Henry the eyght, and is to be song to the tune of Blacke and Yellowe.

" My hand and pen procede to write

" A wofull tale to tell ;

" My pen it cannot half indite

" Alas how it befell.

" Wo worth the man that Treason first

" This thing did take in hande.

" Of all men's mouths they may be curst

" Throughout this English land.

" Wo vvorth wo vvorth wo vvorth them all,

" vvo vvorth to them I say ;

" Wo vvorth wo vvorth wo vvorth them all,

" vvo vvorth to them avvay."

Imprinted at London by Thomas Gosson, dwelling in Paternoster Rowe, next to the signe of the Castell.

The separation of the letter W into two VV's has a singular appearance on the sheet, and it is the refrain to each verse. It has no date. Lord Darnley was murdered on the 10th of February, 1567. He was the grand-nephew of Henry VIII., not the nephew, as given in the title.

1570?

59. A worthy Myrrour, wherein ye may marke,
An excellent discourse of a breeding Larke :

“By readyng wherof, perceyve well ye may,
“What trust is freendes, or on kinsfolkes to stay.”

“Finis . Arthur Bour.”

Printed at London by Richard Johnne.

This is the story of the farmer who, wishing to get his corn reaped, sends for his friends and kinsfolk, who all excuse themselves upon some pretext or other. At last the farmer and his sons resolve to cut it themselves, and then the lark and her nest of young ones know the time has arrived when they must seek other quarters. It has no date, but may be about the year 1570. The sides are ornamented with woodcut borders, and there are two small vignettes at the top, one on each side; one is indistinct, but the other represents the proverb “To bray a fool in a mortar.” This is shown by a figure in a fool’s garb, cap and bells, &c., crouching in a mortar, and a vigorous figure braying or pounding him on the head with the pestle, thus literally elucidating the verse from the Proverbs, chap. xxvii. v. 22—“Though thou shouldst bray a fool in a mortar among wheat with a pestle.”

1571.

60. News from Northumberland.

“This geare goythe well and better it shall
“For triall will tell, the Treson of Ball.”

A ballad of eighteen verses, at the end of each is the above distich as a burden. It refers to the part the Earls of Northumberland and Westmorland took in the rebellion in the North in 1569. They fled into Scotland, and in the following year Northumberland was delivered up to the English authorities, attainted in 1571, and executed in 1572. This was composed while he and Westmorland were in Scotland.

“And to Saint Androwe, be they gone
“With very harde shyfte to make theare moane
“And som of theare ladies lefte behinde.”

It concludes: “Finis. Qd. W. Elderton.”

Imprinted at London in Fleetestreate Beneath the Conduit, at the signe of S. John Evangelist by Thomas Colwell.

1572,
Feb.

61. A Balad Intituled, the Dekaye of the Duke.

“You see by good Triall, what comes of the Duke,
“Turne yet to the Diall, of Gods holie Booke.”

This is a set of verses, like the former, by W. Elderton, with the same imprint, and, like it, has no date. But as therewas only one Duke throughout the whole reign of Queen Elizabeth, it can refer to no other than Norfolk, who was tried for high treason in January, 1572; and these verses were evidently written immediately after his sentence, and before his execution, on the 2nd of June following.

1572. 62. The offer and order given forth by Sir Thomas Smyth, Knight, and Thomas Smyth his sonne, unto such as be willing to accompanye the sayde Thomas Smyth the sonne, in his voyage for the inhabiting some partes of the Northe of Irelande.

It has the autograph signature—THO. SMITH.

1572. 63. A Resitall of certaine branches of a Statute made in the xiiii. yeere of his Majesties Reigne, concerning Collectors for the Poore, duties of Constables, and for such as refuse to paye to the Poore, to put them in better minde of their severall duties and deligence in their Collections and Accompts, and the Constables of their danger for none dooing of their office. And lastly of the punishment of such as refuse to pay to the poore, or wilfully discourage others from paying. The negligence of the Collectors in most parrishes hath been such, that half the Revenewes or collection is cleane lost for gathering: which doth force this course to bee taken, assuring all persons to whom it shall appertaine, that due execution of the same wil be followed with effect uppon the offenders.

- 1572? 64. Meanes devised for better execution of the Statute for reliefe of the Poore, and redressing the disorders of persons vagrant and begging in the Citie of London.

Imprinted at London by John Daye.

These directions are addressed to the Alderman of the Ward, and provide for the weekly appointment of surveyors to put in force all the provisions of the Act against Vagrants. It has no date. John Day the printer died in 1584, and the Act for relief of the poor, &c. next before was passed in the year 1572 (14 Eliz. cap. 5), which is probably its true date. This Act provides, "That if a beggar be convicted as a vagabond he or shee shalbe adjudged to be grevouslye whipped and burnte through the gristle of the right eare with a hot yron of the compasse of an ynche about." The class of people subjected to this exciting operation, and defined to be rogues and vagabonds, were, amongst others, "All ydle persones going about the countrey, using subtill crafte and unlawfull games or playes, and some of them fayning themselves to have knowledge in Phisnomye, Palmestre, or other abused Scyences, and all Fencers, Bearewardes, Common Players in Enterludes, and Minstrels not belonging to any Baron of this Realme; all Juglers, Pedlars, Tynkers, and Petye Chapmen wandering abroad without licence, and all scollers of the Universityes of Oxford or Cambridge y^t goe about begginge, not beinge aucthorysed under the seale of the said Universities."

It is difficult to imagine, under any circumstances, the infliction of such a punishment upon a woman, or even upon a scholar of either Oxford or Cambridge, to say nothing of the Players of Enterludes.

Sing this as the foure score and one Psalmē.

"Be light and glad, in God rejoyce, which is our strength and ayd,
"With joyeful and most pleasant heartes, let it be forth now said:
"Thou art our Lord, thou art our King, thou art our only stay,
"To thee will wee give laud and praise, and further let us say."

Imprinted by Christopher Barkar.

Alowed by authoritie.

This was a hymn or thanksgiving on the Accession, and consists of twelve verses.

1577. 69. A PERPETUALL KALENDAR.

Containing some useful information and various computations for the finding of Easter, Feast Days, Division of the Year, &c. together with

“A short summe of the Regiment of Englande since the Flood, geathered out of the comendable travaile of others.”

Imprinted at London, nigh the Three Cranes in the Vintree, by Thomas Dawson.

This is very well printed in two colours, black and red. The date of it is exactly fixed by the following:—

“The yeares from the Creation of the World:

“From the Creation unto the Floode, 1656.

“From the Floode to Moyses is 797.

“From Moyses to Christ is 1514.

“Summa totalis, 5544.”

1578. 70. Petition of Christopher Barker to the City Companies, for the sale of his Bible: together with Articles concerning the delivery of the Bibles mentioned in the petition of Christopher Barker, Printer to the Queenes most Excellent Majestie.

Precepts, dated 6 Octobris, 1578, were directed by the Lord Maior to ye Wardens of the severall Companies in London, willing them to call before them the members of their Societie, and treat with them to buy the said Bibles according to theis Articles.—MS. note.

1578? 71. A new Ballad, declaring the great Treason conspired against the young King of Scots, and how one Andrew Browne, an Englishman, which was the King's Chamberlaine, prevented the same. To the tune of Milfield, or els to Greenesleeves.

Imprinted at London for Yorathe James, dwelling in Newgate Market, over against Christes Church.

The treason here conspired was to destroy the King by means of a poisoned posset. Another treason is also related—to obtain possession of the young King's person, which was probably that contrived by the Earl of Morton in the year 1578.

1579, July 17. 72. A newe Ballade, declaryng the daungerous shootyng of the Gunne at the Courte.

“Weepe, weepe, still I weepe, and shall doe till I dye:

Edenburgh the twentieth of June, 1580, and in the fourteenth yeere of His Majesties Reigne.

Imprinted at London for Jonas Man, dwelling in Paternoster-Row, at the signe of the Talbot.

There is some error of date in this title: the 20th of June in the 14th year of James VI. of Scotland would be in the year 1581. He commenced his reign on the 24th of July, 1567.

1580,
July. 75. An Epitaph upon the death of the worshipfull Maister Benedict Spinola, Merchaunt of Genoa and free Denizon of England, who dyed on Tuesday the 12 of Julie, 1580.

“ Amongst the States of Italie
 “ that stand and strive for fame,
 “ There is a Citie passing brave
 “ that Genoa hath to name.
 “ Inhabited with noble race,
 “ whereas among the rest
 “ There is a House of Spinolij
 “ as noble as the best.”

Imprinted at London by Thomas East.

The Epitaph consists of twenty-two verses. At the bottom is a rude wood-cut, representing a corpse wrapped up in a shroud, which extends beyond the head and feet and is tied at each end, exactly like a sack of grain. It is placed over an open grave, resting on a spade and mattock. The surrounding ground is scattered with skulls, cross-bones, leg-bones, thigh-bones, and jaw-bones, graves with a little cross at each end, and yew-trees and shrubs to make the scene complete.

"Sir Francis Drake, knight, Generall of the whole Fleete of the West Indian voiage in 1585," containing a brief account of the transactions of the Fleet from 14 September, 1585, when they "departed out of the Roade of Plimmouth," until the 22nd of July, 1586, when "God be thanked we arrived all in good safety at Portesmouth."

This account of Sir Francis Drake's voyage is very curious and of some rarity. It is followed by four leaves headed SAINT IAGO, SAINT DOMINGO, CARTHAGENA, and SAINT AUGUSTINE, containing references (apparently) to charts.

Sept. 15. 82. Brief of John [Aylmer] Bishop of London for collections for relief of the bearer, Thomas Butler of Colchester, Gunpowder Maker, who being at his work for the making of gunpowder, by sudden misfortune was pittifully burnt, and spoyled of his eyes and armes, apparant yet to behold.

1586,
Sept. 83. A most joyfull Songe, made in the behalfe of all her Majesties faithfull and loving subjects: of the great joy which was made in London, at the taking of the late trayterous conspirators, which sought oportunity to kyll her Majesty, to spoyle the Cittie, and by forraigne invasion to overrun the Realme: for which haynous treasons fourteen of them have suffred death on the 20. and 21. of Sept. Also, a Detestation against those Conspirators and all their Confederates, giving God the prayse for the safe preservation of her Majesty and their subversion. Anno Domini 1586.

To the tune of: O man in desperation. Finis. T. D.

Printed at London by Richard Jones.

The above long title is carried out in twenty-five verses of four long lines in each verse, by T. D. The imaginary portraits of the fourteen conspirators are given in two rows of heads, most thorough desperate looking villains.

1586,
Sept. 84. A proper newe Ballad, declaring the substaunce of all the late pretended Treasons against the Queenes Majestie, and Estates of this Realme, by sundry Traytors: who were executed in Lincolnes-Inne felde on the 20. and 21. daies of September, 1586.

To Wilson's new Tune.

Imprinted at London by Thomas Purfoote for Edward White.

This contains twenty-four verses of four long lines each, with a burden of—

"O Lorde preserve our noble Queene, her Counsaile long maintaine,
"Confound her foes and graunt her grace in health to rule and raigne."

With portraits of all the fourteen conspirators, as in the preceding article; with not the slightest resemblance in features.

An occurrence like that above described was calculated to draw forth many effusions of loyalty. George Whetstone, among others, published a small 4to. printed by R. Jones, with the title:

“The Censure of a Loyall Subject, upon certaine noted Speach and “Behaviours of those fourteen notable Traitors, at the place of their “Executions, the xx and xxi of September, last past; as also, of the

A Godlie and zealous prayer, to bee used of every Christian and duetifull subjecte, for the preservation of our most Soveraigne Lady Elizabeth, by the Grace of God, of England, Fraunce, and Irelande Queene, and in all causes as well ecclesiasticall as temporall, next under God, of the Church of England and Irelande supreame Governesse. (Signed, I. P.)

Vivat, valeat, vincatque Regina Elizabetha.

Imprinted at London by Hugh Singleton, dwelling in Smithfelde, at the signe of the Golden Tunne, printer to the right honorable Citie of London.

Singleton was appointed printer to the City of London in 1584; and, as the cause for the above prayer probably originated with the execution of the traitors in 1586, it may be safely placed under that date.

1586. 86. A Godlie Dittie to be song for the preservation of the Queenes most exclent Majesties raigne.

“Al English hearts rejoyce and sing
“That feares the Lord and loves our Queene;
“Yeld thanks to God our heavenly King,
“Who hytherto hir guide hath been.
“With faithfull hartes, O God, we crave
“Long life on earth her Grace may have.

“Finis. R. THACKER.”

Imprinted at London by Abell Jeffes, dwelling in the fore-streete without Creeple-gate. 1586.

This Godlie Dittie has seven verses, and is set to music; the notes (the staff not being divided into bars) being given with the words of the first verse.

27. die Novembris, 1589.

The deposition of John Jones that, at the signe of the George in Yorke, Mr. Christopher Crosbitt did lend unto Mr. Richard Swale, Doctor of the Civill Law, the sum of two hundred pounds in angels.

By which wilfull perjury of this Jones, and Bolton the Cutpurse, Fulwood and Doughtie were condemned in the Star Chamber.

“ Flye Falshood. q. Fulwood.”

This “ Spectacle ” is a printer's proof, corrected for the press, and in itself possesses no peculiar interest; but the proof is pulled on the faint impression of the proof-sheet of a ballad, most of which is legible enough to be deciphered, and, as another copy is not extant in this collection, it is here given at length, with only two or three chasms where the proof is absolutely defaced. It is as follows:—

A merry new Song.

Wherein is shewed the sorowful Cudgelling of the Cobler of Colchester, and the great fault he committed against his wife, for the which he suffered hard penance. To a pleasant new tune called Trill lill.

“ Walking abroad not long agoe,
 “ it was my chaunce to spye
 “ A Cobler’s wife, with crabbed looke,
 “ how she her strength did trie.
 “ A cudgell great she had in hand,
 “ both round and tough withall,
 “ The which about her husband’s pate
 “ she broke in peices small;
 “ So that the man to crye began,
 “ with voice both sharpe and shrill.
 “ But banging him round about
 “ With courage strong and stout,
 “ Have with you, my harts trill lill.

“ His sides she made both black and blew,
 “ his head and nose did bleede,
 “ And round about his cobling stoole
 “ she made him trot with speede.
 “ Upon his knees full oft he fell
 “ her pardon for to praye;
 “ But thwack and thwack, without remorse,
 * * * * *

“ Good people, quoth the Cobler then,
 “ I pray you take some paine
 “ To save me from my angry wife,
 “ or els I shal be slaine.
 “ The proudest scab in place, quoth she,
 “ can do it if he dare;
 “ And he shal beare a broken pate
 “ from hence by Jisse I sweare.
 “ With that againe she goes amain
 “ to work on him her will,
 “ And ever she cryeth as on him she flyeth,
 “ Have with you, my harts trill lill.

“ Now cobler, quoth this cruel queene,
 “ tell me, and do not lye,
 “ How thou dost like the eating of
 “ my * * * apple pye.
 “ O wife, saide he, the woorst to me
 “ that ever I did taste
 “ I will beware while I doo live
 “ how I doo make such waste.
 * * * * *

“ To save his life some then * * *
 “ for feare she would him kill,

- “ Where banging him round about
 “ With courage strong and stout,
 “ She cryed my hartes trill lill.
- “ Now, fie for shame, what doo you meane,
 “ your husband thus to bang?
 “ ’Tis better beare some blowes, she saide,
 “ then hensforth he should hang.
- “ A jewell he did breake and spoyle,
 “ which I esteemed deere;
 “ That I will not forgive the same,
 “ no, not this twenty yeere.
- “ You need not blame, though I should lame
 “ the olde knave for his ill.
 “ Then banging him round about,
 “ With courage strong and stout,
 “ She cried my harts trill lill.
- “ Beleeve me, quoth the Cobler then,
 “ this thing is nothing so;
 “ For eating of an apple Pye
 “ she hath wrought me this woe,
 “ And tasting of a custard small
 “ which she in store did keepe:
 “ She hath misusde me as you see,
 “ and made me thus to weepe,
 “ And in despight she takes delight
 “ to plague me at her will,
 “ And ever she crieth when on me she flieth,
 “ Have with you my harts trill lill.
- “ Gwyp with a murrain, sir, she saide,
 “ Must your old choppes be fed
 “ With custards and with apple pyes;
 “ A rope come stretch your head.
 “ I’le teach you take the Rye brown loafe
 “ and know the Essex cheese
 “ Is fitter for your rotten teeth “ then any one of these.
- * * * * *
- “ to course him * * *
 “ And ever she crieth as on him she flyeth,
 “ Have with you, my harts trill lill.
- “ And though, quoth she, indifferent well
 “ thy carkasse I did bumme,
 “ Yet from thy carnion greedy guts
 “ I’ll fetch out every crumme.

" With that she did a feather take,
 " and in his throate it thruste,
 " Then up he cast the apple Pye
 " and laid it in the dust.
 " The Dog, quoth she, shall eat it free
 " ere that thy guts shall fill,
 " And ever she cried as on him she flyed
 " Have with you my harts trill lill.
 " Loe, heere the spitefull nature plaine
 " wherewith she was possest;
 " For never was there any man
 " like to the cobbler drest,
 " Who made an oath while he did live
 " such wisdom to apply,
 " He would take heed how he did eate,
 " or touch an apple pye.
 " Least with his wife he fell at strife
 " And felt her froward will:
 " Who evermore cryeth, when on him she flieth,
 " Have with you my harts trill lill.

Nec omnes nec omnia mihi placuere : cur ego omnibus ?

H. PLATTE.

Imprinted at London by Richard Field, 1593.

This gives a description of several new, useful, and rare inventions, and also representations of A Boulting Hutch; A New Kinde of Fire; and A Portable Pumpe.

Hugh Platt of Lincoln's Inn had been the author of "The Floures of Philosophie with the Pleasures of Poetrie annexed to them," published in 1572. In 1594 he published "The Jewell House of Art and Nature, containing divers rare and profitable Inventions," 4to. and subsequently several other works of a similar kind, of which there is a list in Lowndes's Bibliographer's Manual. He was knighted by James the First.

1593-4, March 20. 92. A Briefe note of the benefits that growe to this Realme, by the observation of Fish-daies : with a reason and cause wherefore the lawe in that behalfe made, is ordained. Verie necessary to be placed in the houses of all men, specially common Victualers.

Seene and allowed by the most honorable Privie Counsell, in the yeere of our Lord God 1593, the 20. of March.

At London. Printed by Roger Warde dwelling in Fleete streete over against the Conduit, at the signe of the Castle.

With woodcuts of a fishing-boat and a ship.

1595-6, Jan. 28. 93. In memoriam celeberrimi viri Domini Francisci Drake, militis, qui nuper in navali expeditione contra hostes patriæ suæ, ex Dysenteria laborans obiit, viz. 28. die Januarij, Anno Domini 1595.

This is enriched with four elaborate woodcut borders, and two centre ornaments; one representing a concert by ten performers, with Mount Parnassus and Pegasus in the middle; the other, Orpheus charming the birds and beasts with his musical performances upon the lyre. It has no imprint.

1595-6, March 20. 94. A Briefe note of the benefits that grow to this realme by the observation of Fish-daies, &c.

The same as No. 89, with one additional clause. It has exactly the same ornamentation, and is by the same printer.

1596? 95. Portrait of George Clifford Earl of Cumberland.

" Like Mars in valour sterne and boulder :

" Minerva brings him sheilde and speare,

" By no man's arme to be controulde.

" No Spaniarde proude cann make him fear

" But to defende his Queene and Lande

" Com's Noble Earle of Cumberlande."

The portrait is contained in a medallion in the centre, underneath which are the above lines. On either side are emblematical figures: on the dexter Mars, as a knight in full armour; on the sinister (as in the verse), Minerva with spear and shield. On the outer rim is the engraver's name—William Rogers.

1599? 96. The very rare portrait of Robert Earl of Essex on Horseback. On various parts of the background are represented the places of his most celebrated actions—Roan, The Ilands of Trecebras, Cadiz, and the last in the distance, Irelande. In the upper part of the plate on the dexter side is the following inscription on a square frame :

“ The Right Honorable Robert Deworex, Earle of Essex and ewe, “ Earle Marshall of England, Her Maties Lieutenant and governor “ generall of the Kingdom of Ireland, Vicount hereford and “ bourgcher, Lord feres of Chartley, bourgcher and lovan, Mayster
 “ of her Maties Horse and of her Ordinance, Knight of the most “ noble order of the garter, and of her highnes privie Counsell, and “ Chauncellor of the Vniversitie of Cambridge.” On the opposite side is the Earl’s arms with the motto, “ Basis virtutum constantia.”
 Underneath the whole is this verse :

“ Vertues honor, Wisdomes ualure, Graces seruauant, Mercies loue, “ Gods elected, Truths beloued, Heavens affected, Doe a prove.
 T. Cocksonus . fecit.”

As this was after his appointment as Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and evidently before his disgrace, the year 1599 has been assigned to it.

Imprinted at London by Simon Stafford, dwelling on Adling hill, neere Carter-lane.

1602,
 Nov. 6. 98. The Plot of the Play called ENGLANDS JOY : to be playd at the Swan this 6 of November, 1602.

The “ Plot ” is elucidated in nine articles, in which Elizabeth is personated in mortal antagonism with the King of Spain, and after defeating all his malicious attempts, she is finally victorious and by angels is crowned with “ an Emperiall Crowne garnished with the “ Sunne, Moone, and Starres : and so with Musicke both with voyce and “ instruments, shee is taken vp into Heaven, when presently appears “ a throne of blessed soules, and beneath under the stage, set forth with “ strange fire-workes, divers blacke and damned souls, wonderfully “ discribed in their severall torments.”

It has no imprint.

1602. 99. A Caveat for the Borrower : or, a perfect Table of Usurie, shewing how much the principall summe, with the interest, and interest upon interest, from one pound to a thousand, amounteth unto yearly for twentie one yeares, after the rate of ten in the hundred.

Printed by John Legat, Printer to the Universitie of Cambridge, 1602. And are to be sold in Pauls Churchyard at the signe of the Crowne by Simon Waterson.

1602? 100. A Table of Boorde and Timber measure, more perfect than ever hath beene made; shewing also the square roote betweene 4 and 31 from quarter to quarter. Calculated by R.N.

It has neither date nor imprint, but may be about the same time as the preceding table.

Eliz. 101. The rare Print of the Portrait of Queen Elizabeth in the Clouds: magnificently dressed, in her right hand a fan of ostrich feathers, round the head a circle of stars, and above that the motto:

“PER TAL VARIAR SON QUI ✠.”

Underneath, in three lines, (but here broken into six,) the following verse:

“Lo here her Type, who was of late
 “The Propp of Belgia, Stay of France,
 “Spaines Foyle, Faiths Shield, and Queene of State,
 “Of Armes and Learning, Fate and Chance,
 “In briefe, of women, nere was seene,
 “So greate a Prince, so good a Queene.

“ELIZABETHA REGINA.”

Fr. De. [i.e. Francis Delaram.] Sculptor. Nic. Hillyard delin. et excud. cum privilegio Maiest:

Also inserted, Are to be sould at the Angell in Lumbard Streete, by Roger Daniell.

The following are without date, but are all presumed to be in the reign of Elizabeth.

Eliz. 102. An advertisement for Education.

Such as are desirous, eyther themselves to learne, or to have theyr children or servants instructed in any of these Arts and Faculties heere under named: It may please them to repayre unto the house of Humfry Baker, dwelling on the North side of the Royall Exchange, next adjoyning to the signe of the shippe. Where they shall fynde the Professors of the said Artes, &c. Readie to doe their diligent endeavours for a reasonable consideration. Also if any be minded to have their children boorded at the said house, for the speedier expedition of their learning, they shall be well and reasonably used, to theyr contentation.

Then follows, "The Arts and Faculties to be taught are these," principally arithmetical, with the first rudiments of geometry, &c.

GOD SAVE THE QUEENE.

103. Finch his Alphabet, or a Godly direction, fit to be perused of each true Christian.

Twenty-four verses, each verse commencing with a large letter of the alphabet. The first is:

"ADAM our Father being the first man,
 "Through Eve his wife the which vile sinne began:
 "But God of his mercie thought it verie good,
 "We should be sav'd through Christ our Saviour's blood."

Printed at London for John Wright, and are to be sold at his shop in Gilt-spur-street.

Eliz. 104. Names of the Counties in North Wales & South Wales. Probably from an edition of Speed's Maps.

Eliz. 105. A Description of the County of Surrey, with a Table of the Hundreds and Parishes and Towns therein contained.

Imprinted at London by Thomas Snodham for John Sudburie and George Humble; and are to be sold in Popes-head Palace.

From an early edition of Speed's Maps.

Eliz. 106. A Table of the cheiffest Citties and Townes in England, as they ly from London, and the distance of miles, howe a man may travill from London to any of them, or from any of them to London.

London. Printed by Walter Dight, at the signe of the Harpe in shoo-lane.

This table is constructed on a circular principle, London, of which a curious view is given, being in the centre, and the various towns radiating to extreme distances; Exeter being the furthest extent westward, and York northward. The distances, however, are very inaccurately given, and the traveller would have been sorely perplexed if he had placed any faith in them. For instance, the number of miles as given are, from London to Rye, 48; to Dover, 55; and to Exeter, 138. The whole is cut upon wood, except the title and imprint.

Eliz. 107. Forme of a Scedule for Musters.

JAMES I.

March.

108. Weepe with Joy.

A Lamentation for the losse of our late Sovereaign Lady Queene ELIZABETH, with joy and exultation for our High and Mightie Prince King JAMES, her lineall and lawfull Successor.

Printed at London by V. S. for Edmund Mutton, dwelling in Pater-noster-Row, at the signe of the Hunts-man, 1603.

V. S. was probably Valentine Simmes, who was a printer from 1595 to 1611.

1603?
July.

109. A Praier. Very comfortable and necessary to be used of all Christians every Morning and Evening, amongst their families, that it would please the Lord God to be appeased in his wrath, and to withdraw his heavy hand and greivous visitation from among us.

Printed for T. Pavyer, and are to be sold at his shop entring into the Exchange.

There is no date to this Prayer, and there is very little internal evidence to assist in assigning it to any precise date. The passage, "O Lord, if we "did but looke a little backe to beholde thy late love & abundant mercy "bestowed upon us (the people of England) yea even when to the eyes of "the world we were bereft of all helpe or hope of helpe, expecting nothing "but wrack both of our soul, body, and goods:" may refer to the period of the Spanish Armada, then fresh in the recollection of the generation that witnessed the accession of James I. in the first year of whose reign England was visited with the plague so grievous, that, as will be seen by the Proclamations, the law terms were adjourned, the commercial fairs prohibited, and even the Coronation for a time postponed. It is therefore suggested this Prayer may, with some degree of probability, be assigned to the period of that "greivous visitation."

1603?

110. A Prayer to be said by the poor needy and aged Almesmen of the Company of the Merchant Taylors, for the blessed charity of a good brother of that Company.

As the word QUEENE in this prayer is obliterated, and the pronoun HER changed into HIS, this also is probably in the first year of James I. These marks of obliteration were quite visible before the process of laying down, but in that process the obliterating marks have almost disappeared.—[ED.]

1603?

111. A divine descant full of consolation
Fitting a soule plung'd in desolation.

Verses, the rhymes terminating with the several sentences of the Lord's Prayer: thus—

“ No fitter fountaine for my soul to bathe her
 “ Then in those drops of Grace from God Our Father, “ Nor sweeter solace to her can be given
 “ Then thoughts lift up to thee Which art in Heaven.”
 It has neither date nor imprint.

1603? 112. Come ye Blessed &c. Goe ye Cursed &c.

or

A Diall of Direction to Doomes-Day: denoting, by the seaven deadly sins, seaven dangerous steps descendant to destruction: and by their contrary opposite Vertues, the seavenfold ladder ascending to everlasting Felicitie.

Printed at London for William Wilson, and are to be sould by Francis Grove, over against the Sarazens-head without Newgate.

Consisting of fourteen stanzas, in two columns; seven on one side being devoted to the cardinal virtues—Humility, Love, Patience, Labour, Liberality, Temperance, and Chastity; and on the other side the seven deadly sins—Pride, Envy, Wrath, Sloth, Covetousness, Drunkenness, and Lecherie. Opposite to each stanza in the margin are lively pictures of the respective subjects, the whole surmounted by a representation of the Day of Judgment—the blessed souls on one side being received into Heaven, the cursed ones on the opposite side being received elsewhere by very nasty-looking animals.

1604, 113. Blank form of Privy Seal for loan of a sum of money to the July 31. King.

1604. 114. The Printer to the Reader. Hearing that many are desirous to see the London Ministers Petition, & fearing least some corruptions might be spread in sundry written copies: I thought it meete to prevent the one and to remove the other, by giving thee a true and faithfull copie therof in print, hoping that none wilbe offended by printing it, seeing that nothing was meant by the first penning of it, neither is by the present publishing of the same, but that which is good and duetifull.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTIE

The humble Petition of Two and Twentie Preachers in London and the suburbs thereof.

Praying for continuance in their Ministry, although they cannot, in their consciences, subscribe to the five severall bookes, with certayne Ceremonies therein prescribed.

Numbers of the clergy were disturbed in their consciences by the resolutions of the Conferences at Hampton Court in January, 1604, enforced by the Proclamation of the 5th of March, “for the authorizing and uniting of the Booke of Common Prayer to be used throughout the “Realme.” Many were in consequence suspended from their livings, and by a subsequent Proclamation of the 16th of July a further time was given “to all Ministers disobedient to the Orders of the Church and to Ecclesiastical Authority, untill the last of November now next ensuing, to bethinke themselves of the course they will hold therein.” They did “bethinke themselves” therein, and were deprived of their livings rather than subscribe to ceremonies they held to be “repugnant to the Word of God.”

1604. 115. A Solemn Decree of the Nationall Synod of GAP, in the Province of Dolphiné in France, publicly proclaimed, and ascribed to the Publique Confession of the Church. Declaring the Pope of Rome to be the GREAT AND PROPER ANTICHRIST.

Londini, per Edwardum Alde et A. J. 1604.

This has a Latin and English version on the same sheet, in two columns.

1604. 116. Novum et solenne Decretum à Synodo GAPENSIS apud Delphinates proclamatum, et publicæ confessioni Ecclesiarum Gallicarum ascriptum.

Gallijs. Sub correctione D. Tileni. 1604. A Janon Delph. Typogr. et Not. Reg.

The Latin version of the above Decree.

1607. 117. An Exposition of the Ten Commandments, set forth in a Table, in the form of genealogical descent, derived from the Law, URIM and THUMMIM. Addressed to all faithful Christians. By Christes unworthie Minister that desireth your edification, W. S.

At London printed by William Barley.

- 1609, Sept. 119. Form of family Prayers; in the time of God's visitation by Sicknesse or Mortality especially, may be used by Governours of Families. First, a Confession of Sinnes: Secondly, a Thanksgiving for deliverances: Thirdly, a Prayer for continuance of God's mercies.

Printed at London by Valentine Simmes, dwelling on Adling Hill, at the signe of the White Swanne.

It has no date, but it was evidently before the death of Prince Henry, which took place in 1612; and the visitation of the plague next before that event was in September, 1609.

1610,
Nov. 28.

120. A true Copie of a writing Testimonial by aucthority devised and commaunded, to satisfie the worlde, and to cleere Zachary Dow of London, Draper, and his children, from the reproach of a hand wryting, falsely compacted and maliciously published in Blackwell Hall and elsewhere against him, and also from that most injurious clayme of 238£. upon the same wryting made by one Sara Babington, now Sara Gough, the wife of John Gough as appeareth.

129. Portrait of Robert Cecyll Earl of Salisbury, in oval, with the following inscription underneath:

“ Robert Cecil, Chevallier, Baron de Esinden, “ Conte de Salisburie, Gardien des Orphelins,

“ Grand Tresorier d’Angleterre, et Chevalier

“ Hh del. et excudit, cum privilegio, Hagæ Comitiss.”

Robert Cecill Earl of Salisbury died on the 12th of May, 1612, in which month this is placed, though it was probably executed during his lifetime.

1612,
Nov. 6.

130. The beautiful and rare Portrait of Prince Henry in the act of poisoning a lance; in the distance, the representation of a tournament or justs. It has the following inscription:

“ Illustrissimi Generosissimique Pri. Henrici

“ Magnæ Britanniae et Hyberniae Principis,

“ Vera Effigies.”

He died, to the great grief of the whole nation, on the 6th of November, 1612.

131. To the Most Honourable Assembly of the Commons House in Parliament—the Humble Petition of English Marchants, trading into Spaine & France: praying relief from the amount of Customs unfairly levied upon the Wines imported by them. With copy of an Order set downe at the Councell Table for Marchant Strangers & of a letter thereon from the Council to Sir John Swinnerton, then L. Maior of London.

1613,
Feb.?

132. The Royall Line of Kings, Queenes, and Princes, from the uniting of the two Royall Houses Yorke and Lancaster.

An extremely rude woodcut of portraits of all the Sovereigns and Princes of England from Henry VIII. to Elizabeth, daughter of James I., and her husband the Prince Palatine inclusive, with four descriptive verses at the foot.

1613,
Feb.

133. An English Royall Pedegree;

Common to the two most noble Princes lately married.

FREDERICK,

first Prince of the Imperial blood, sprung from glorious Charle-Magne Count Palatine of the Rhine, Duke of Bavier, Elector and Arch-Sewer of the holy Romaine Empire, & Knight of the renowned Order of the Garter,

ELIZABETH,

Infanta of Albion, Princesse Palatine, Duchesse of Bavier, the onely Daughter of our most gracious King James and Queene Anne.

and

Being both of them in one and the same degree of lineall descent from Edward the Third, the victorious

King of England.

This Royall and Princely Pedegree is by the Author dedicated to the right noble Lady Elizabeth Vicountesse Hadington, wife to the most valarous rescuer of our King, John Lord Ramsey, Vicount Hadington.
James Maxwell.

Imprinted at London for Henry Gosson.

Besides the Pedegree above described, the chief view is the whole-length portraits of the royal couple in the act of joining hands, angels descending from the clouds, crowning them with chaplets, shields, arms, &c.

1613,
Feb.

134. Another "Imperiall and Princely Pedegree," very similar to the above, with the portraits (heads only) of the royal couple; and similarly described in two columns; "being both of them on their "most noble father's side lineally descended, He in the ninth, She in "the tenth degree (which numbers in them, united, make up King "James his auspicious and luckie number of nineteene) from two most "noble, vertuous, and worthy Princes," &c.

Dedicated by the same author as the preceding to the valorous rescuer of our King, the right honorable John Lord Ramsey, Vicount Hadington, whose Eagle heaven make to soare as high as ever did the Eagle of his noble ancesters, John Lord Ramsey, Earle Bothwell, and William Lord Ramsey Earle of Fife.

The allusion here and in the other dedication to the "Rescuer" of the King refers to the very questionable part which John Ramsey bore in the Gowrie conspiracy, 1600, in which, after killing the Earl's brother, he killed the Earl himself, after he had lowered his sword's point to the ground, and was not in the act of self-defence. [Historie of James VI.]

1613,
April?

135. By His Majesties Councell for Virginia.

Notice, that for the establishing of the Gospell there and the honour of our King and country, they have published a little standing Lotterie consisting but of 12 pence for every Lot: to be drawn on the 10. day of May next.

Imprinted by Felix Kyngston for William Welby, dwelling at the signe of the Swanne in Pauls Churchyard, 1613.

136. St. Saviour of Southwarke.

A rate of Duties belonging to the Corporation of the Churchwardens of the Parish of St. Saviour of Southwarke, in the County of Surrye, as well in the right of the said Corporation, as also in respect of their title to the Rectory of the said Parish; agreed upon by the generall consent of the whole Vestry, and confirmed by the Ordinary of this place in Anno Domini 1613.

Being a Table of Fees for various Church services: curious as to the difference of price between being buried WITH a coffin or WITHOUT a coffin; showing the prevalence of the latter custom at that period.

April 9.

137. To the most Hon^{ble} Assemblie of the high Court of Parliament. The humble Petition of many thousands of poore distressed Carpenters, Bricklayers, Smithes, Plaisterers, Glaziers, Painters, and other handy-craftes men: Concerning the manner of building and repairing houses; and that Mr. Innago Jones did not attend the Committee thereon.

It has been difficult to fix a satisfactory date to this Petition. On the 9th of April, 1614, a Bill was introduced "for the redress of certain abuses and deceits used in Plaistering and Bricklaying, & for well ordering of the men in each faculty," but it was "dashed" on the 15th.

May 24.

138. Petition of the Tylers & Brick-layers of London, praying that it may be enacted that the Assize of Bricke and Tyle and the measure of Lyme and Sand, may be observed in London and in all places within fiftene miles compasse thereof, according to the Ordinances established by the Master and Wardens of the Company of Tylers and Bricklayers of London.

A Bill "for reformation of divers Abuses and Defects in making and selling of Brick, Tiles, Lime, and Sand" was introduced and read the first time on the 24th May, 1614, but, the Parliament being suddenly dissolved on the 7th of June, nothing more was heard of it.

1614. 139. The Achievement of our Sovereigne King James, as he nowe beareth; with the armes of the severall kings that have aunciently raigned within his nowe Dominions.

Iodocus Hondius Flander cælavit Anno Domini 1614.

Probably the Frontispiece to the first edition of Speed's Maps, which was dedicated to King James. The Frontispiece to the edition of that work in 1676, dedicated to Charles II., is copied from this plate.

Custom
House. 140. Officers Fees for Englishmen, as they are received in the Port of London, set downe under the hands of the Fermors, Comptrollers, Collectors, and Searchers of the Custom-house there; for a rule and president to every Custome-house in any Port of His Majesties Dominions, according to the Table of Fees signed by the late Lord Treasurer the Earl of Dorset and the then Barons of the Exchequer.

Imprinted at London by Robert Barker, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majestie. Anno 1615.

1615. 141. The Portraiture of Sir Thomas Overbury, Knight, ætat. 32. Renold Elstrack sculpsit. Compton Holland excudit.

This is the rare and beautiful Portrait of Overbury represented in the act of writing his own epitaph, and is the source from whence all subsequent likenesses of him have been taken. He was murdered in September, 1613, but the lines underneath the portrait shew that it was not engraved until after the trials for his poisoning had taken place, which was nearly two years after his death.

1615. 142. Sir Thomas Overbury or the Poysoned Knight's Complaint. Representing a tomb, on the top slab of which lies a skeleton; on the side of the tomb the following verses:

"Within this house of Death a dead man lies,
"Whose blood, like Abels, up for vengeance cries:
"Time hath revealed what to trueth belongs,
"And Justice sword is drawne to right my wrongs,
"You poysoned mindes did me with poyson Kill,
"Let true repentance purge you from that ill."

On either side of the tomb stand the figures of Time and Justice, and underneath a short poem by Samuel Rowlands, alluding to the tragic scenes lately perpetrated and calling for justice upon the murderers.

Imprinted at London for John VVhite.

1615,
Nov.

143. Mistris Turner's Farewell to all women. A large wood-cut with two female figures ; one representing Mrs. Turner in deep mourning ; the other Lady Pride, lasciviously dressed out, and between both, these verses :

“ Angell (turn'd Divell) Pride, by thee I fell,
“ When heere on earth I dwelt, too the pit of Hell :
“ Ye, spite of all thy Poysons, I am faire :
“ Now in God's eyes, Women by me Beware.”

Then follow some verses descriptive of Mrs. Turner and Lady Pride.

Printed for John Trundle.

The whole contained in a large oval border of very rude ornamentation.

145. The picture of the unfortunate gentleman, Sir Gervis Elvies, Knight, late Leiftenant of his Majesties Tower of London.

Sir Jervis Elvies being led to execution by two Clergymen, some short verses underneath. He was executed on the 20th of November.

Printed at London in the Black-Friers by Paul Boulenger, 1615. Contained in the same rude oval border as No. 134.

1615,
Dec. 9.

146. James Franklin, a Kentishman of Maidstone, his ovvne Arraignment, Confession, Condemnation, and Judgment of Himselfe, whilst hee lay Prisoner in the Kings Bench for the Poisoning of Sir Thomas Overbury. Hee was executed the 9 of December, 1615.

Imprinted at London for J.T.

This is the last of the series of Broad-sides relative to the dismal and disgusting tragedy of Sir Thomas Overbury. The subject has recently received much elucidation from the pen of Andrew Amos, Esq., in his work called "The Great Oyer of Poisoning: the Trial of the Earl of Somerset for the poisoning of Sir Thomas Overbury." 8vo. London. 1846.

1615.

147. 159. A brieft collection of some part of the exactions, extorsions, oppressions, tyrannies, and excesses, towards the lives, bodies, and goods of Prisoners, done by Alexander Harris, Warden of the Fleete, in his foure yeares misgovernment, ready to be proved by oath and other testimonies.

The foule exactions, extorsions, and base usages towards Prisoners, by Robert Holmes the clerke, Henry Cooke the porter, Richard Mansell, and other M. Wardens, worthy instruments, servants, and affidavit men, would aske a volume, and is reserved for a larger discourse.

Great complaints of injustice and cruelty were made to the Privy Council against the Warden of the Fleet in July and November, 1618, and a Committee of Council was appointed to inquire into them: but the issue of the inquiry does not appear upon the Council Registers.

1618. 160. The Forme and maner of making and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons.

Imprinted at London by Bonham Norton & John Bill, Deputies and Assignes of Robert Barker, Printer to the King's Most Excellent Majestie. 1618.

On the title-page is the autograph of HUM. DYSON, and on the preface is a wood-cut vignette of the letter I from Ovid's Metamorphoses of Apollo and Daphne, under the monogram of Anthony Sylvius (see No. 156), who engraved a whole alphabet of initial letters from the designs of Rafaele. Examples of these beautiful letters most frequently occur in the Proclamations of Henry VIII. and Queen Elizabeth.

1618? 161. The Offices or Prayers to be used at the Ceremony of Touching for the King's evil.

This has no date, but it is indorsed by Humfrey Dyson "Tempore Jacobi Regis," and bears his signature, HUM. DYSON.

163. Ad foelicissimum Jacobi et Annæ prolem, Carolum Walliæ Principem, Elisabetham Frederici Electoris Comitiss Palatini vxorem, Regalemque eorum progeniem quæ nunc est, vel Dei gratia erit in posterum.

In the centre of the sheet are two palm trees surmounted with the letters A and R crowned. Between the palm trees a circle formed by a serpent holding his tail in his mouth; in the centre of the circle a portcullis, the panels of which contain the letters ANNA, so disposed as to read in a variety of ways; and beneath

Obijt in Domino, Anno Domini 1618 quarto nonarum Martij, annos nata 44, menses 4, et dies 18.

Edidit Serenissimæ Reginæ Mœstissimus Capellanus Guilielmus Svradonus, Collegij Wickamici alumnus, Sacræ Theologiæ Doctor et Archidiaconus Wigornia.

The 4th of the nones of March is the 4th of March; but all other authorities concur in stating the death of Queen Anne to have happened on the 2d of March; yet it is difficult to imagine her own chaplain could have been in error on such a point.

And eke a Crowne; Englād a Crowne & grave.

The Daughter, Spowse, & Sister of a King,
 Mother of those y^t many Kings may bring.
 English, Scots, Dæes, ar all in mourning seene
 For Anne of Dēmarke, & Great Brittaines Queene.

It is extremely difficult fully to describe this curious plate from the profusion of ornament and diversity of allusions. The principal design is to shew the ascent of the spirit of Queen Anne into Heaven. In the lower part of the plate is seen the effigies of the Queen in full robes lying on a tomb, with her head resting on Jacob's stone; from whence rises Jacob's ladder, very high up on which is a figure which may be considered her spirit just entering Heaven. Nearly at the foot of the ladder is a very stout angel, which another verse tells us has just descended, bearing a tablet on which is written a consolatory verse addressed to Prince Charles and the Princess Elizabeth. On one of the sides of Jacob's ladder is the inscription La mia grandezza dal Exelso, which in No. 150 ante appears as the motto of the Queen's arms. At the base of the tomb are these sentences:

Spiritus ascendit: Corpus descendit in urnum: Debuit umbra sequi: Charta sed ista tenet.

A Table, containing an Almanacke for LXXII yeeres, shewing expressly, and consequently, the Moneth and day on which every mooveable Feast in those yeeres shall happen: and also a briefe Table containing a most exact computation of Time beginning at 1485, and so continuing to the yeere 1649, with the ancient Kalendar according to the English Accompt, shewing the Festivall dayes fixed; the day of the New and Full Moone, with the houre and minute of the Sunne setting every day in the yeere; and other Notes and Rules very necessary to be observed. Collected and Published by Reinold Smith, servant to the Right Honourable Francis Lord Verulam, Lord High Chancellour of England, and one of his Majesties most Honourable Privie Counsell. From Yorke House October 4. Anno Dom. MDCXX.

London Printed by John Bill, 1620.

1620. 174. A Note of the severall sorts of Bookes in the Ware-houses of the Kings Ma^{ties} Printing House.

It has no date, but, as the preceding article is the last work enumerated in it, that gives about the true date.

1620. 175. FILL GUT AND PINCH BELLY: One being Fat with eating good Men, the other Leane for want of good women.

“Now full bellyed Fill gut, so Fat heere in show
“Feeds on our good Men, as Women well know,
“Who flocke in great numbers, all weary of lives
“Heere thus to be eaten, and rid from their Wives.”

Printed at London for Edw. All-de for Henry Gossen, 1620.

This is a large and humorous wood-cut representing two animals, one, as in the title, very fat indeed with eating the vast numbers of good men that flock to him to be swallowed: the other a gaunt and very lean beast, evidently starved for want of sufficient nourishment in the shape of good women; however, among many thousands, he at last catches one, and is making the most of her. In other parts of the picture are represented different scenes of poor husbands being ill used by their wives.

177. The SUBJECTS JOY for the Parliament. Printed by E. All-de for H.G., and are to be solde by Edw. Wright.

A Poem of 112 lines by John Tayler, but without date. There can however be no doubt it was written on the occasion of the New Parliament in 1621. The First Parliament of James was dissolved on the 9th of Feb. 1611. A new one met in April, 1614, from which great expectations were formed that were by no means realised, and it was suddenly dissolved on the 7th of June following. The long interval of seven years elapsed before James ventured to summon another. Writs for a new parliament were issued on the 13th of Nov. 1620, and it met for despatch of business on the 30th of Jan. 1621.

- 1621,
Jan. ? 178. Orders set down by the Master, Wardens, and Assistants of the Companie of Ship-wrights for the better ordering and well government of that Corporation, and reforming all abuses and disorders contrary thereunto.

The Patent of the Ship-wrights was called in question on the 19th March, 1621, and the next day an order passed that they should not exact, demand, or receive any money under it till further order be taken therein. On the 19th April it was brought into the House. These orders are evidently before the Proceedings in Parliament.

- 1621,
Feb. 21. 179. The grievances of the Owners and Masters of shipping, trading to the Southwards, against the Patent for Dungenesse Lights.

Petitions were presented against the Lighthouse of Dungeness and Wintertonness in Feb. 1621; on the 27th of that month a great debate took place, and those Patents were finally condemned on 18th of April.

- 1621,
March 17. 182. The Description of Giles Mompesson, late Knight, censured by Parliament the 17th of March, 1620.

A very fine engraving in three compartments: the centre one representing the escape of Sir Giles out of a window by means of a rope, as alluded to in the Proclamation against Mompesson; the other compartments describe scenes incidental to his extortions, particularly as to his Patent for licensing Inns, a copy of which under the Great Seal he holds in his hand. Sir Giles was expelled the House on the 3rd of March, and the Judgement of both Houses was pronounced against him on the 26th of March.

- 1621,
March 22. 183. The answer of the Masters of the Trinitie-house to the speciall Objections of the Patentee for the keeping of Winterton Lights.

The Petition of the Masters of the Trinity House against the Patentee of Winterton Lights was presented on the 22nd of March, 1621.

1621, 184. Reasons why the Contribution of one Penny per Tunne of March. every Ship that goeth forward & backward on the North coast of England, towards the maintenance of the Lighthouses at Winterton, should not be any grievance: with an Answer unto the objections of the Masters of the Trinity House.

This was a subject of much discussion in Parliament in Feb. and March, 1621: see Commons' Journal.

1621, 185. To the most honorable Assembly of the Commons House of April 19. Parliament. The humble Petition of the Felt-makers in and neare London, praying for the prohibition of the importation of Felts and Hats wrought and half wrought, beyond the Seas.

Upon removing the next Petition of the Bookbinders, this one of the Feltmakers was found pasted under it.

1621, 186. To the most Honorable Assembly of the Commons House of April 19. Parliament; the Binders of Bookes in London doe most humbly shew, complaining of the Company of Goldbeaters and of their monopoly of the importation & sale of Gold Foliat.

On the 19th April, 1619, Dr. Eglesfield's Patent for making Gold Foliat was questioned in the House, and on the 2d of May condemned.

1621, 187. To the most Honourable Assembly of the Commons house of May 2. Parliament: The humble Petition of the Wardens and Comminalty of the art or myserie of Dyers in London: praying for the total prohibition of the importation and use of Logwood in Dyeing.

"The Patents of Sir Tho. Compton prohibiting importation of Logwood, and dispensing with Importation thereof," were on the 2d of May, 1621, ordered to be brought into the Committee for Grievances.

Nov. 191. To the Most Honorable Assembly of the Commons House of Parliament. “A Briefe of the Petitioner’s Cause:” relative to the right of Alan Bishop or Caleb Morley to the Incumbency of the Parsonage of Stalbridge.

The questions upon the whole precedent matter are two:

I. Whether Caleb Morley or Alan Bishop be lawfull Parson of Stalbridge.

II. Whether the said Lease be good against Morley being Parson.

Probably in 1621; on the 1st of December in that year Caleb Morley was committed to the custody of the Serjeant-at-Arms for an offensive Petition against Mr. Justice Hutton, and his Brief in all probability was prior to that event.

The Manner of his arrivall at the Spanish Court, the Magnificence of the Royall Entertainement there; his Happy Returne, and hearty welcome both to the King and Kingdome of England, the fifth of October, 1623: Heere lively and briefly described, together with certaine other delightful passages, observable in the whole Travaile.

“ no tongue can halfe expresse
“ The ravisht Countries wondrous joyfulnessse,
“ The peoples clamour, Trumpets clangor, sound
“ Of Drums, Fife, Violls, Lutes, these did abound,

“ Loud Cannons thundring from the Castels, Towers,
 “ And Ships, shooke Ayre and Earth ; all, to their powers,
 “ Pourde healths of wine for welcome :”

To God's glory, and the exceeding joy and comfort of all true loyall hearted subjects.

Curious wood-cut of the meeting of the King and the Prince; the King rushing out with the Crown on his head, the Prince rushing in, booted and spurred, on his knee receives the royal and paternal embrace. In the distance people making huge bonfires, a country inn, the alewife bringing out drinking cups, the serving-man bearing a large tankard, doubtless of very good ale or wine.

April 14. 216. To the most Honorable Assembly of the Commons house of Parliament: The humble Petition of the Artizan Cloth-workers of the Citie of London.

The Bill for relief of the Cloth-workers of London was read a first time on the 14th April, 1624.

1624,
April 19. 217. Reasons tendred by the Free Butchers of London against the Bill in Parliament to restraine Butchers from Grazing of Cattle: "There is no Butcher of London but doth serve seven yeares' Apprenticeship before he is made Free, and in that time hee may learne to know what a leane Oxe is worth, and what hee may bee worth when he is fat."

The Bill to restrain Butchers from grazing of Cattle was read a first time on the 19th April, 1624, and it does not appear to have gone any further.

1624,
April 19. 218. True loving sorrow, attired in a Robe of unfeigned Griefe, presented upon occasion of the much bewailed Funerall of that Gracious and Illustrious Prince Lewis Steward, Duke of Richmond and Lincolne, Earle of Newcastle and Darnely, Lord of Torbolton and Methuen, Baron of Settrington, Knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, Lord High Admirall, and Great Chamberlaine of Scotland, Lord High Steward to the King's most excellent Majesties most Honourable Houshold, Gentleman of His Majesties Bed-Chamber, and one of His Majesties most Honourable Privy Councill for England and Scotland. Who departed this life at White-Hall, on Thursday, the 12 of February, whose Obsequies were solemnly and Princely celebrated on Munday, the 19 of April, described in forme as followeth: Dedicated generally to all his worthy Friends and loving Servants, and particularly to that trusty and well-beloved Servant of his, Arthur Neassmith.

The description consists of an Anagram, a laudatory poem, an epitaph, and a detail of the Funeral procession.

"Thus past this sad shew from His Grace's house in Holborne to Westminster, where the Funerall Rites being solemnly ended, His Grace's lively Effiges was left in the Abbey of St. Peter's under a Rich Hearse."

John Taylor.

220. Greate Brittaines Noble and Worthy Councell of Warr.

“The God of Warre lookes downe, and from his eies
“Shoots smiles of joy to see what Policies
“Are read (here) in this schoole; This Council Boord,
“(Upheld by tenne brave souldiers) does afford.”

Printed for Thomas Archer, in Pope’s-head Alley, and are to be sold at his shop in Pope’s-head Alley, over against the Signe of the Horse-shoe.

The Council of War consisted of ten of the most distinguished soldiers of the period, and was constituted by James 1st. by Commission dated at Theobalds, on the 21st of April, 1624, directed to Oliver Lord Viscount Grandison, George Lord Carew, Fulke Lord Brooke, Arthur Lord Chichester, Sir Edward Conway, Sir Edward Cecill, Sir Horace Vere, Sir Robt. Mansell, Sir John Ogle, and Sir Thomas Button. In this curious engraving the Council is represented sitting in Council at the Board. Their names are contained in a scroll in the upper part of the picture; but whether the figure holding it is supposed to be up in the ceiling or standing on the floor, from defective perspective is uncertain.

1624,
April 23.

221. A Venerable Aspect of both the Houses of Convocation of the Reverend Prelates and Clergy of the Province of Canterbury, assembled by his Majesties authority, first in St. Paul’s London, Feb. 13, 1623, thence removed to Westminster, and there yet continuing this 23 of April, 1624. Wherof, the Upper House consisteth of the most Reverend Metropolitane and the Right Reverend Bishops of that Province, now assembled in Henry the Seventh’s Chappel in Westminster; and the Lower House of the Deanes, Archdeacons, and Clerkes of the Diocesses and Chapters of that Province, is assembled in another distinct place on the north side of Westminster Church.

These are two very rare engravings; the first represents the Archbishops and Bishops sitting in Convocation, and their names, of both Provinces; the second, or Lower House, with the names of all present, Dr. John Young, Dean of Winchester, being Prolocutor.

225. To the most Honorable Assembly of the Commons in the house of Parliament: the Binders of Bookes in London doe most humbly shew, That George Withers, Gent., hath lately composed a Book which he calleth The Songs or Hymnes of the Church; and complaining of the grievance that, according to his privilege, no Psalm Book, Bible, Testament or other service book should be bound and sold, unless the said Songs and Hymns were bound up with them.

On the 15th May, Mr. Withers was sent for, for not delivering up his Patent; but, whether it was this George Withers or any other is uncertain.

May 28.

226. To the right Reverend and right Honourable the Lords Spirituall and temporall assembled in the Upper House of this most high and honorable Session of Parliament. An Abstract of the grievances and oppressions done by Sir Arthur Ingram, Knight, and his Agents, to Griswell Rogers, widow, and her poore Orphans: who prays the Hon. Court to settle her right and title to Heyrove in Somerset, and the lands therein, upon her and her posteritie: and they shall beseech the Lord of all Lords to crowne you all with eternall glorie in the great Parliament of Heaven.

The Petition of Mrs. Grizell Rogers against Sir Arthur Ingram was referred by the Lords to the arbitration of the Earl of Bridgewater, who reported his award to the House of Lords on the 28th of May, 1624: which is entered in full upon the Journals, vol. iii. p. 415.

May 28.

227. To the Right Honorable the Lords Spirituall and Temporall in this present Parliament assembled. The humble Petition of Erasmus Record and Millicent Vaughan, widow, the Administratrix of the goods, chattels, and debts of Walter Vaughan, deceased; praying that their rights may be preserved in all Acts to be passed this present Parliament, concerning the Manor of Castle-campes.

The Petition of Erasmus Record and Millicent Vaughan concerning

“divers sums of money owing unto them, upon divers Statutes and Recognizances unto which the Manor of Castle Camps is liable, which is now part of the possession of Sutton’s Hospital,” was read in the Lords on the 28th of May: and the Lords recommended it to the Governors of that Hospital “for the Petitioners to be relieved according to the merits of their cause.”

229. The Trabels of Time, loaden with Popish Trumperies, from Great Britaine to Rome: with a Dialogue betwixt Time and Truth, Popery and Policy; each of them declaring what service they have done to their Masters.

A very spirited Engraving, representing in the centre the tree of Religion, on the one side Time, bearing on his back a figure of the Pope laden with Romish Trumperies, carrying him back to Rome, his designs on England having failed; on the other side is the figure of Truth, with the scriptures in one hand and in the other a powerful lens reflecting “the light of the Gospel,” the concentrated power of which ignites a quantity of popish rubbish at the foot of the tree, the smoke ascending from which brings down from the tree a whole cloud of Popish vermin that had covertly taken shelter in its branches. At the back of Truth a figure is seen sitting on a basket of Eggs, over which is written Politicie.

“Indeed hee’s but a Furie in man’s shape,
“His name is Politicke—Religion’s Ape.”

The Dialogue opens with Time, who is answered by his daughter Truth. She introduces the notice of Politick, who, addressing the figure on Time’s back, asks,—

“Say wherefore are you hence in poste thus riding?”

Popery answers,—

“To Rome againe, for here is no abiding.
“Our labour’s lost, my deare adopted Sonne,
“And all that we have done, is quite undone.
“The things we thought more secret than the night
“Time and his Daughter Truth hath brought to light.”

Politicke bewails the failure of all their schemes :

“ Al times and seasons I with care have watcht,
 “ And sate on Eggs, in hope they would be hatcht.”

* * * * *

“ Then came a Parliament, whose weighty stroake
 “ Found out my nest, and all my Eggs they broke.”

* * * * *

“ The Catholicks of us are growne suspitious,
 “ Our Jesuit Priests have beene so avaritious.”

* * * * *

“ Then let's be jogging, here's no staying here,
 “ The fourteenth day of June is full of feare ;
 “ For then a Proclamation doth take force
 “ To hangs us all. Pray God it prove no worse.”

This curious production has no date, and without it a very large portion of the interest attaching to it would be lost ; but the lines above quoted, and those invaluable handmaidens of History, the Proclamations, enable us to assign a most satisfactory one to it.

After the return of Prince Charles from Spain, the investigations before Parliament in February, 1624, disclosed to the People of England the atrocious articles of the contract for marriage between the Prince and the Infanta ; by one of the secret articles of which King James engaged himself to procure the repeal of all penal laws against the Roman Catholicks within the space of three years. On the total rupture with Spain, which immediately followed the investigations in Parliament, the Penal laws against the Catholics were sought to be rigorously enforced. A Proclamation was issued on the 6th of May, 1624, setting forth the manifold inconveniences and dangers occasioned by the multitude of Jesuits, Seminary Priests, their boldness and insolency in seducing and withdrawing His Majesty's subjects from their Religion and their Allegiance ; and commanding them and every of them before the 14th day of June then next ensuing, to transport themselves out of the realm and never after to return to it, under pain of “ the uttermost severity of the lawes.” A copy of this valuable Proclamation is not in the Society's Collection ; but a copy, together with the Original MS. signed by the Attorney-General, Sir Tho. Coventry, is extant in the State Paper Office, and it is printed in the Fœdera, vol. xvii. p. 598.

To the Glory of God, in thankefull remembrance of our three great Deliverances, unto eternall Memory is here described; The Spanish Armado in 1588; The Powder Treason in 1605; and the heavy time of God's Visitation, 1625. With a zealous prayer to turne from us the fourth Judgement, that is likely to fall upon us by the Sword. With a Descriptive Account of the above Three Great Deliverances; giving Statistics of the Spanish Armada, the anonymous letter to Lord Monteagle that led to the discovery of the Gunpowder Plot, and Statistics of the Great Plague in London in 1625 and 1626.

Gentle Reader, if thou be desirous to see more of this, I referre thee to a little Booke called The Crummes of Comfort.

Printed at London by Isaac Jaggard, for Michael Sparke, dwelling in Greene-Arbour, and are there to be sold, 1627.

This curious engraving is divided into six compartments, representing the Spanish Fleet off the English Coast, and the Queen returning public thanks in St. Paul's; the Powder Plot, with the Devil leading Guy Fawkes into the Cellar; and the Death Scenes of the Plague, with three groups of people praying, fasting, and giving thanks, for the miracle of their deliverance.

1625. 267. A Generall or Great Bill of this Yeere of the whole Number of Burials which have been buried of all Diseases, and also of the Plague in the Cite of Westminster, Lambeth, Newington, Stepney, Hackney, and Islington, from Thursday, the 30 of December, 1624, to Thursday, the 22 of December, 1625. According to the Report made by the Parish Clarkes of the said Parishes.

London. Printed by William Stansby, 1625.

This shews the curious fact that nearly half of the whole number of deaths in the above districts, and more than half of those from the Plague, occurred in the single parish of Stepney.

1625. 268. A Song or Psalme of Thanksgiving in remembrance of our great deliverance from the Gun-powder Treason the fift of November, 1605:

1628. 290. The Names of all the High Sheriffes of the severall Counties within England and Wales, chosen and appoynted for the yeare 1628.

Imprinted at London for William Ward, dwelling on Lambeth-Hill, neere Old Fish-streete, 1628.

The Lists of Sheriffs at this period, and during the whole reign of Charles the First, were not entered on the Registers of the Privy Council. In the above list only one sheriff served for the counties of Cambridge and Huntingdon, and one for Sussex and Surrey. In 1635 the Privy Council saw the inconvenience of such an arrangement, and in the following year separate Sheriffs were proposed to be nominated for each of those counties. The first List of Sheriffs entered on the Council Registers occurs on the 5th of November 1660, when only one sheriff appears for Cambridge and Huntingdon, and one each for Surrey and Sussex.

1630. 303. A Looking-glasse for City and Countrey; wherein is to be seene many fearfull examples in the time of this grievous Visitation, with an admonition to our Londoners flying from the City, and a perswasion to the Country to be more pitifull to such as come for succor amongst them.

Printed at London for H. Gossen, and are to be sold by E. Wright at his shop at Christ Church Gate.

This has a large woodcut, representing the Londoners flying into the country, some in carriages, others on foot and on horseback, and a dead body lying unburied on the ground. Beneath is a description of many afflicting scenes, both in London and the country, during the visitation of the Plague.

1630.

304. London soundes a Trumpet, that the Countrey may heare it.

When death drives, the Grave thrives,
Coach-man, runne thou away never so fast,
One stride of mine cuts off the nimblest haste.

London. Printed for Henry Gossen, 1630.

This has exactly the same woodcut as the preceding, but the descriptive letter press is different; bewailing the afflictions borne by the City of London and the selfishness of those fleeing away; with exhortations to charity by those whose affluence gives them the means of relieving the distresses of the poor they leave behind them.

1630.

God preserve His Majestie and the Lawes, wherein their Lordships & the whole Kingdome are concerned.

David Jenkins Prisoner in the Tower of London.

17 Ma: 1647.

Judge Jenkins, as will be seen from the above, was a staunch Royalist; and, by his unconquerable obstinacy, gave the Parliament a great deal of trouble, as appears on reference to the Journals of both Houses, from 1646 to 1650. On the 3rd of January, 1646, Mr. David Jenkins and others, who were taken prisoners at Hereford, were ordered to be sent up to London in safe custody. On the 22nd he was committed prisoner to the Tower for High Treason, for levying war against the Parliament. Various other proceedings against him took place in 1646 and 1647. On the 25th of September, 1647, he was removed from the Tower to Newgate, and on the 21st of February following was brought to the Bar of the House by the Serjeant-at-Arms, and, being required to kneel, "did absolutely refuse." Being again called in and desired to kneel on peril of his life, he replied; "That as to the point of kneeling he hath given his answer, and said that he will not kneel unless he were forced." Whereupon he was fined a thousand pounds, and on the same day the Ordinance for his attainder was read a third time and passed. He was not, however, so easily disposed of: numerous other entries, from time to time, respecting him, occur. On the 28th of June, 1650, he was ordered to be tried for his life, "in consequence of the "murder of Mr. Anthony Ascham, in Spain."

1648. 509. King Charles 1st First. Majesty in Misery.
An Imploration to the King of Kings, wrote by His Majesty during his Captivity in Carisbrook Castle, Anno Domini 1648.

T. Cobb Sculp. Bow-Church-Yard, London.

Presented to the Society of Antiquaries by J. Y. Akerman, Esq., May, 1854.

This curious Broadside, it may be conjectured, was not published till after the Restoration. It was pasted on a thin deal board, probably for the purpose of suspension in schools and other public places, on the return of Charles II. The picture in the centre is copied from the usual frontispiece to the Eikon Basiliké, and the verses are those generally prefixed to that work. They are also printed in Harris's Life and Writings of Charles I. p. 125.

1648. 510. A LOOKING-GLASSE FOR STATESMEN: wherein they may clearly see the reward of their severall actings.

These Actings are shewn by two pictures; one, of the good Statesmen—Moses, Joseph, Daniel, Shadrach, Meshach, Abednego, Mordecai, and Nehemiah; the other, the bad Statesmen—Haman hanging on a gibbet; Saul falling on his sword; Achitophel hanging from a tree; Strafford and Archbishop Laud being beheaded.

Printed for I. H. in the year 1648.

1648? 511. A Reason, or a revenge against the reproach of a Round-head: why the word Roundhead is put upon all the Antipapisticall party as a reproach.

With the effigy of an aged man leaning upon a staff, at the foot of which is a skull. But whether the figure is intended for a Roundhead or any other character, or whether it was engraved for the Broadside, or no, is matter for conjecture.

1649, Jan. 22. 512. HIS MAJESTIES REASONS against the pretended Jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice, which he intended to deliver in writing on Munday, January 22, 1648. Faithfully transcribed out of the Originall Copie under the King's own Hand:

"This I intended to speak in Westminster-Hall, on Monday, 22 January, but against reason was hindered to shew my Reasons."

London. Printed by Robert Ibbitson, 1649.

Sir Balthazar Gerbier in 1630 was the English Agent in the Court of Flanders, and subsequently Master of the Ceremonies in the Court of Charles the First. The troubles of the Rebellion annihilated his courtly position, and doubtless drove him to the above exposition of his talents, and possibly of his destitution.

1649? 521. A Perfect Cure for Atheists, Papists, Arminians, and all other Rebels and Traytors, both against Church and State.

An extraordinary combination of ingredients to form a political Medicine, beginning, “Take half a moneth’s voyage to the Mistaking of Cales; three grains of Salt brought from the Isle of Ree, where so many brave Gentlemen were murdered; five promises for the relief of Rochel, ten flames of the Spanish ships that were sent to conquer England, one ounce of Sir Tho. Overburies Potion,” &c. &c.

“Put all these in Lucasses Brain-Pan that was shot to death for Treason and Rebellion, with fifteen drops of his Majesties tears that he shed for grief when he heard of it:”—“then strain it with one of Canterburies lawne sleeves when he stood to see Burton, Pryn, and Bastwick’s ears cut off in;”—“wrap the neck hard with a yard and a half of Tompkin’s halter, and stop the breath one hour. If this fail to cure any of them, the Devil mend them all.”

With a representation of the heads of Perkins and Sullivan stuck upon poles at the top of Temple Bar.

Presented by J. Payne Collier, Esq. 1853.

The Chetham Collection has not a copy of this curious Dialogue; but it contains two other Broad-sides, Nos. 53 and 2715, relative to the execution of Sir William Perkins, who, with John Friend, suffered at Tyburn for high treason, on the 3rd of April, 1696. On the 18th of October, 1715, Joseph Sullivan was hanged at the same place, for enlisting men in the service of the Pretender.

The last heads exposed on Temple Bar were those of Colonel Francis Townley and George Fletcher, who were executed on Kennington Common on the 30th of July, for treason, and their heads placed on the Bar on the 2nd of August, 1746, where they remained till the 31st of March, 1772. No traces are now to be seen of the mode in which the poles, bearing the heads or quarters, were fixed, the Bar having been new roofed many years ago.

Presented by Robert Lemon, Esq. 1853.

[The following fifteen broadsides were presented to the Society by John Payne Collier, Esq. V.P. in 1854. They are a series of coloured woodcuts, executed and limned in the rudest style of art, and were probably published about the middle of last century, though several of the subjects are familiar as being exhibited in the shop windows in the early portion of the present one. The date of publication in no instance appears.

An elaborate paper on the subject of these coloured prints was read to the Society of Antiquaries by Mr. Collier, on the 30th of March, 1854, which is published in the third volume of the Society's Proceedings, p. 86.]

FINIS.

ADDITIONAL BROADSIDES.

THE following Broad sides were presented to the SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES by EDWARD PEACOCK, Esq., on the 4th of December, 1862, too late for insertion in the great body of the Collection. They are nearly all of a very modern date

London,
24th December, 1862.

ADDITIONAL BROADSIDES.

1611. 1. Title Page of THE HOLY BIBLE, conteyning the Old Testament and the New, newly translated out of the Originall Tongues, and with the former translations diligently compared and revised, by his Majesties speciall comāndement. Appointed to be read in Churches.
Imprinted at London by Robert Barker, Printer to the King's most excellent Majestie, Anno Dom. 1611.
1629. 2. The figure of a human body of monstrous formation, sent to the Physicians' College for dissection.
Evidently a mere negro, with a malformation in the feet.
- Chas. II. 3. Plate engraved of all the principal characters mentioned in Clarendon's History of the Rebellion, King Charles I. occupying the centre compartment.
- 1724,
Sept. 28. 4. The ECCENTRIC WILL of the late HENRY TRIGG, of Stevenage, in the county of Hertford, directing his body to be committed to the West End of his Hovel, there to remain till the day of general Resurrection.
The remains of Henry Trigg are still to be seen upon the rafters of the Old Castle, Stevenage. His skeleton was buried in April, 1835.
1743. 5. Account of the life and age of Henry Jenkins, of Ellerton, in the county of York, who lived to the amazing age of 169 years, by Mrs. Anne Saville, with the epitaph erected to his memory at Bolton.
With a pencil portrait of Jenkins by Thos. Illingworth.
1780. 6. Invitation Card to attend at Mr. Urin's house, to drink some good old beer at the Gold Hind, Allen Street, Goswell Street.
- 1795? 7. A French Game called LE NOUVEAU JEU DU COSTUME et des Coeffures des Dames, dédié au Beau Sexe.
Consisting of 63 coloured figures of ladies' heads and dresses; to be played with two dice, and moving from number to number, exactly on the principle of the Royal Game of Goose, which was a great favourite at the beginning of the present century.

- 1795? 8. Another French Game called LES EPINES CHANGÉES EN ROSES, Jeu nouvellement inventé pour apprendre à lire aux enfans en très peu de temps.

A scholastic game consisting of 71 figures played exactly in the same manner as the preceding, teaching the sounds and combinations of the various letters of the alphabet, exemplified by the figures of animals, insects, &c.

- 1798, Feb. 9. The real view of the FRENCH RAFT as intended for the invasion of England, drawn from the original at BREST.

This surprising machine was 2,100 feet long and 1,500 feet broad, and was to be propelled by four windmills, which gave a revolving motion to four wheels. It was armed with 500 pieces of cannon, and was to convey 60,000 men.

Published by P. & J. Gally, London.

- 1800? 10. A CHRONOLOGICAL list of the KINGS and QUEENS of England from the Conquest. Giving the year of their birth, of their accession, and death.

Printed by W. Day, Goswell Street.

- 1800? 11. Description of the Triumphal Entry of Sir Sidropel, a quack doctor, and his man Whaccum, into a country town:

Behold the great Sir Sidrophel,
Quoth Whaccum to the Crowd,
Who does such cures no man can tell
As is by all allowed.
All sickness flies at his approach,
Here take his pills—You'll keep your coach.

- 1815, Aug. 8. 12. A Descriptive Sketch of the ISLAND OF ST. HELENA, including its extent, climate, productions, population, government, means of defence, &c. with a coloured view of ST. HELENA from the ROADS.

Published Aug. 8, 1815, by J. & E. Wallis, Skinner Street.

- 1818, Nov. 17. 13. Two flash Bank Notes, one dated Nov. 1818, Promising to pay Master Bonaparte TWO PENCE when the Gallic Flag shall triumph over the British; the other dated 1 Jan. 1840, for £200 value received in Sugar Plums. Sold by S. W. Fores, Piccadilly. See No. 723 Broad-sides.

- 1820? 14. Notice and description of British Antiquities, as celts, battleaxes, &c. found at Walton, near Winterington Haven, with a drawing of the various articles.

- 1820? 15. A Sheet of Scriptural Songs: THE PILGRIM—THY WILL BE DONE—LABOUR FOR CHRIST, &c.

Printed by Shepherd, Printer, Louth.

- 1820? 16. Another Sheet of Scriptural Songs: PRAY ON—LOVE JESUS—PRAYER—THE HAPPY LAND, &c.

Same Printer.

17. Another Sheet of Scriptural Songs: The PILGRIM'S HOME—THE MERCY OF GOD—THE SINNER'S FRIEND—We won't give up the BIBLE, &c.

Same Printer.
